Two Indian Americans Renominated by Trump for Federal Judgeship

Nicholas Ranjan and Neomi Rao

based attorney Nicholas Ranjan is to be nominated at a federal judgeship on the District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania and Neomi Rao, who is currently the administrator for the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, is the President's nominee to replace Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh in his old seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit.

The seat Nicholas Ranjan has been nominated for opened on June 3, 2016, with Judge Kim Gibson's move to senior status. While the seat opened in the Obama Administration, no nomination was put forward to fill the vacancy.

Ranjan applied to the bipartisan judicial selection committee set up by Pennsylvania Senators Bob Casey and Pat Toomey in March 2017. Ranjan interviewed with Toomey and Casey and was then recommended to the White House. He was formally nominated on July 24, 2018.

Ranjan began his career with a fellowship in the Ohio Solicitor General's Office and a clerkship on the Sixth Circuit, but he's spent his entire legal career since then at the Pittsburgh office of K&L Gates, handling commercial and appellate litigation.

Neomi Rao is a former professor of structural constitutional law, administrative law, and legislation and statutory interpretation at the Antonin Scalia Law School at George Mason University. Prior to joining the Law School, Rao served in all three branches of government. She served as Associate Counsel and Special Assistant to President George W. Bush. Administrator Rao also served as counsel to the U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary, where she was responsible for judicial nominations and constitutional law issues.

But Rao's nomination is sparkling controversy for her past writings in which she partly blamed women victims of date-rape, according to media reports. A report from BuzzFeed News unearthed some troubling pieces that Rao wrote between 1994 and 1996 when she was a student at Yale and shortly afterward. In an October 1994 column in the Yale Herald, she reportedly acknowledged that men who rape drunk women should face charges but added that "a good way to avoid a potential date rape is to stay reasonably sober."

SAKHI participates in 2019 Women's March

NEW YORK, NY (TIP): On Saturday, January 19, 2019, leading NYC-based immigrant women's advocacy organization, Sakhi for South Asian Women (Sakhi), commenced their 30th Anniversary with their participation in the 2019 Women's March on both New York City and Washington, D.C.

As an official partner of the March on NYC and a Steering Committee member of the March on D.C., Sakhi convened 35 supporters and allies to advocate for progressive local and national discourse around equity and inclusivity. "It is a privilege to be able to march with my community", says Sarika Patel, a member of Sakhi's contingent. "The negative news we see and hear everywhere makes it so easy to feel discouraged. But, the sheer quantity of people who came out to march today is testament to the fact that there is never a shortage of like-minded individuals committed to change."

Sakhi exists as the second-oldest South Asian women's organization in the United States and recognizes that systemic impact demands the power of a collective. "This is an immensely critical time for women's empowerment and gender justice," says Executive Director, Kavita Mehra. "This administration's continuous abuse of power must be met with accountability and we will continue mobilizing with our allies and supporters. The Women's March provided us with the opportunity to advance a meaningful agenda that protects our communities from attacks on our dignity and self-determination."

Since its inception, Sakhi has responded to more than 10,000 survivors of violence and consistently mobilized New York City's South Asian immigrant community to take a stand against abuse. Throughout 2019, the organization will highlight their 30 years with celebratory events across the city.

NEW YORK (TIP): The Early Bird Special Registration for AAPPI's 37th annual convention to be held at the Omni Atlanta at CNN Center and Georgia World Congress Centre (GWCC) in Atlanta from July 3 to 7, 2019, will end on April 1st." Dr. Naresh Parikh, President of AAPPI, said , January 19.

"We are expecting to have a record attendance of more than 2,000 delegates including Physicians, Academicians, Researchers and Medical students at the convention. Also, you get to pick your own choice of seats at the galas as soon as you register for the convention. ## NY Senate Majority Passes the José Peralta New York State DREAM Act

ALBANY, NJ (TIP): The Senate Majority Conference, on January 23 passed the José Peralta New York State DREAM Act (S.1250). This legislation will allow undocumented children, who are already students in New York State, the ability to qualify for state aid for higher education, create a Dream Fund for college scholarship opportunities and remove barriers that prevent undocumented families from college saving programs. Allowing undocumented youths to access financial assistance will enable them to earn degrees, access highly skilled employment and support their local economies across New York State.

"Today we made it clear that we will continue to stand up for New Yorkers," Senate Majority Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins said. "We made college more affordable, we have made it possible for all teachers to teach without undue burdens, and we passed tax relief for middle class New Yorkers by making the property tax cap permanent."

Bill Sponsor, Senator Luis Sepúlveda said, "I am honored to sponsor the José Peralta New York State DREAM Act. This essential piece of legislation will create new pathways to higher education for our bright undocumented students who form an important part of our American family. Immigrant workers make approximately 17 percent of the overall labor force in the U.S. In our state, that number is much higher. Immigrants are 25 percent of our labor force and add roughly $100 billion in consumer power to our economy yearly. Immigrant students will now reach even greater heights because of the improved access to a world-class education. Through the Jose Peralta New York State DREAM Act, our shared American dream becomes a reality for thousands of deserving young immigrants."

Senate Bill S.1250, the José Peralta New York State DREAM Act, will:

- Create a DREAM fund commission and a DREAM fund in order to advance the educational opportunities of the children of immigrants by providing scholarships to college bound students.
- Eliminate potential financial obstacles to obtaining State financial aid and extends the opportunities for undocumented students to attend higher education institutions.

- Eliminate barriers for immigrant aliens to save for their families higher education expenses by allowing such individuals to open a New York State 529 family tuition account under the New York State College Tuition Savings Program and/or be a designated beneficiary on an account if they have a taxpayer identification number.

Senate Deputy Leader Michael Gianaris said, "As a child of immigrants, I know firsthand how the contributions of immigrant families enrich our communities. Passing the DREAM Act commits New York to delivering on the promise of a better life to another generation. The new New York Senate is fighting for our immigrant neighbors and will not deny anyone the opportunity to succeed."

Senator John Liu said, "With this legislation, we invest in our collective future. We provide access to college education for aspiring students who grew up American but are denied support because of documents they could not be responsible for securing. We empower students to pursue the American Dream and when they achieve it, we will all be better for it."

Indian Man Pleads Guilty in International Computer Scam

EDISON, NJ (TIP): An Indian origin man from Edison pleaded guilty for taking part in an international based computer scam which conned 83 senior citizens out of cash totaling $25,000, according to a news release from Middlesex County Prosecutor Andrew C. Carey.

Mohammed Alam, 25, of Edison pleaded guilty during a hearing on January 7, 2019 to third degree theft of moveable property.

Under a plea agreement reached with Middlesex County Assistant Prosecutor Russell Curley, Alam will be sentenced to a term of probation and must pay full restitution to his victims in the amount of $25,000.

Alam conspired with parties from a call center in India that used his Edison based company, Infusion Micro, LLC to accept payments from unsuspecting victims.

The scam was initially uncovered by Detective Sergeant Aaron Wojtkowski of the Newbury Police Department, in Massachusetts, when a Newbury resident reported she had been contacted by someone on behalf of Microsoft. The caller claimed the elderly victim had a problem with her computer and for a fee they could fix the problem remotely.

The State of the Indian Republic

India is celebrating 70th Republic Day. What a day! Congratulations! Indians celebrate the Constitution of India - the most well written Constitution in the world, it is said. There is a plethora of rights and guarantees for all citizens of a wonderful country, gifted with Nature's bounty. God's own country, one may as well say. And Indians are legitimately proud of the work done by Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar and his colleagues in giving them a wonderful Constitution.

India has a political system which has weathered all kinds of storms. India has a system of governance which can be functional under any person and party. India is growing in numbers, in wealth, in influence in the world. India truly is progressing. And Indians must be proud of the achievements India can boast of.

India has some of the world's wealthiest people. Indians have the best brains. They may not have opportunities in India. But they are all over the world. Some of them head the largest companies in the world. Some are the top scientists. Some others are the best-known academics. Name any profession, they are among the top.

But then how is it that India is hungry, 73 years after independence, and 70 years after becoming a Republic? When you have the manpower, intellectual power, wealth and all kinds of means in your armor, how is it that there is so much poverty in India? In 2012, the Indian government stated 22% of its population is below its official poverty limit. The World Bank, in 2011 based on 2005's PPPs International Comparison Program, estimated 23.6% of Indian population, or about 276 million people, lived below $1.25 per day on purchasing power parity.

According to Global Wealth Report 2016 compiled by Credit Suisse Research Institute, India is the second most unequal country in the world with the top one per cent of the population owning 58% of the total wealth. And this gap is widening, day by day.

On this Republic Day, I will like our political and thought leaders to please put their heads together and find ways to end poverty, and, next the unjust economic inequality, in the interest of the great nation that India is and the equally great people that Indians are.

"In America, given our cherished Bill of Rights, "Flag burning" by an American is both

By Vijay Prashad

The fulcrum of geopolitical tension sits on Caracas, the capital of Venezuela. An attempted coup on January 23 has failed. The U.S. decided to recognize a member of the Opposition, Juan Guaidó, as the President of Venezuela. U.S. officials called upon the military to rise up against the government of President Nicolás Maduro. This was against the charters of the United Nations and of the Organisation of American States (OAS). None of that mattered. The drumbeats sounded from Washington to Caracas. There was a minor drum playing from many Latin American capitals, those whose governments had joined the Lima Group - set up in Peru in 2017 to overthrow the government of Venezuela.

There is little respite for the country, where tension sits heavily from one end to another. Thus far, the government of Mr. Maduro remains in power, and the military has pledged its fealty to the re-elected president. It is unlikely that the Venezuelan Opposition - controlled by the old oligarchy - will be able to engineer a coup from within the country. It tried such a political maneuver in 2002, which failed. This time it has failed again.

Venezuela's Foreign Minister Jorge Arreaza, 45, has been understandably busy on the day after the attempted coup. The U.S. tried to isolate the Maduro government. The OAS met in Washington DC, where the U.S. government tried to get it to unanimously vote against Mr. Maduro. Even that meeting could not go as scripted. A veteran activist from Code Pink, Medea Benjamin, sneaked into the room and chanted slogans against the attempted coup. Many Latin American states, despite intense pressure from the U.S. government, either voted against the OAS motion or abstained. Mr. Arreaza watched these

When I asked him about the coup, he went back to 2017, the last time that the oligarchy tried to wrest control of the government from the socialists. The socialists, led by Hugo Chávez, came to power in 1999. After the U.S. attempted to overthrow Chávez and the socialists in 2002, things calmed down. Oil prices rose and the U.S. was distracted by events in Iraq and Afghanistan. For a decade, Venezuela was able to lead a regional process of integration on an anti-imperialist foundation. But, when Chávez died in 2013, the experiment began to unravel. Oil prices fell dramatically, and the U.S. had already turned its attention to Latin America. A coup in 2009 overthrew the democratically elected government of Honduras. The gunsights turned toward Venezuela. The oligarchy, backed fully by the U.S., attempted to foment trouble in 2017.

Mr. Arreaza recalled one man, Orlando emotionally offensive and legally protected political speech. Desecration, when devoid of political speech, however, is a crime. Indeed, being upon one's knee in NFL games is in the same genre, albeit, less offensive.

AS I SEE IT

A failed coup in Venezuela

The country was once the heartbeat of leftist assertion. But with change in the Americas, matters are now complex

Thus far, the government of Mr. Maduro remains in power, and the military has pledged its fealty to the re-elected president. It is unlikely that the Venezuelan Opposition - controlled by the old oligarchy - will be able to engineer a coup from within the country. It tried such a political maneuver in 2002, which failed. This time it has failed again.

Figuera, 21, who was going through an Opposition stronghold in May 2017. "He was accused of being a government supporter and brutally beaten by masked protesters who then soaked him in gasoline and set him on fire," Mr. Arreaza told me. He brought up this story to offer an illustration of the character of the Opposition. Mr. Arreaza called this a 'violent fascist movement'. He wanted to make it clear that the coup attempt was a part of that movement - one that is less interested in democracy and more interested in power and wealth.

Venezuela is in trouble. No one doubts that. Oil prices have fallen to half of what they were at the highpoint of Chávez's government. Since the treasury of Venezuela is almost entirely replenished by the incomes from oil sales, the collapse of oil prices means the collapse of Venezuela's public finances. Unable to borrow easily, the country faces serious economic difficulties. Sanctions by the U.S. and the seizure of refining sites in the Caribbean put the country into a situation of great crisis. No wonder that people are leaving the country, fleeing their homeland as it is suffocated for political purposes by the U.S. and its Latin American allies in the Lima Group.

Colombia's Iván Duque and Brazil's Jair Bolsonaro are both right-wing politicians who control the governments of Venezuela's neighbors. They have committed themselves to the overthrow of the Venezuelan government.

Mr. Arreaza and others in Venezuela told me that Mr. Duque, Mr. Bolsonaro and U.S. President Donald Trump have overplayed their hands. After the attempted overthrow in 2017, the Venezuelan government tried to deepen public participation by the formation of a Constituent Assembly. It is true that the oligarchy hated this idea and that the western press amplified its views about this being anti-democratic. But, as many Venezuelans say, the Constituent Assembly and the many elections for candidates and referendums that came before 2017 have sharpened their political consciousness. It will be hard to befuddle them with talk of dictatorship.

The isolation of Venezuela is remarkable. Not long ago, the country was the heartbeat of the leftist assertion in the hemisphere. Now, with the emergence of right-of-center governments in Latin America and with an explosive energy for regime change in Washington, matters are more complex. Mr. Arreaza said that Mr. Maduro had invited the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, to visit Venezuela. She has not yet come. Mr. Maduro, he said, wanted the UN to host a dialogue with the Opposition to restore some balance to the politics in the country. No such assistance has been provided. A hand is outstretched from Caracas, Mr. Arreaza said. It is waiting for someone to take hold of it.

UN Peacekeeping: India's Contributions

By Asoke Kumar Mukerji

As an "original" founder-member of the United Nations, India has not hesitated to respond to the calls of the UN to contribute troops for maintaining international peace and security. In 1950, soon after India's independence, the 60 Parachute Field Ambulance of the Indian Army was sent to provide medical cover to U.S./R.O.K. and UN forces engaged in the Korean War. The unit served in Korea for a total of three and a half years (November 1950- May 1954), the longest single tenure by any military unit under the UN flag.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi greets Indian Peacekeepers who returned from South Sudan

India's contributions to UN peacekeeping operations (UNPKOs) have been underscored by the experience and professionalism of India's armed forces. Speaking at the September 2015 Leaders' Summit in New York on UN Peacekeeping, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi had said: "The foundations of the United Nations were laid by the brave soldiers on the battlefields of the Second World War. By 1945, they included 2.5 million men of the Indian Army, the largest volunteer force in history." India today is the largest contributor of troops to UNPKOs. More than 200,000 Indian troops have served in 49 of the 71 UNPKOs deployed so far.

As an "original" founder-member of the United Nations, India has not hesitated to respond to the calls of the UN to contribute troops for maintaining international peace and security. In 1950, soon after India's independence, the 60 Parachute Field Ambulance of the Indian Army was sent to provide medical cover to U.S./R.O.K. and UN forces engaged in the Korean War. The unit served in Korea for a total of three and a half years (November 1950- May 1954), the longest single tenure by any military unit under the UN flag.

From 15 November 1956 to 19 May 1967, eleven infantry battalions from India served by rotation in the UN Emergency Force (UNEF 1) to ensure the withdrawal of France, U.K. and Israel from Egyptian territory and to sustain the peace between Israel and her Arab neighbors. 27 Indian UN peacekeepers lost their lives in this operation.

In 1960, the Congo requested for deployment of UN peacekeepers to counter secession and re-integrate the country after Belgian rule. Between 14 July 1960 and 30 June 1964, two Indian brigades participated in ONUC UNPKO. The rules of engagement were modified to cater for use of force in defense of the mandate, in carrying out humanitarian tasks, and in countering mercenaries. 39 Indian personnel lost their lives in the operation. Captain Gurbachan Singh Salaria became the only UN peacekeeper to receive the Param Vir Chakra, India's highest military award, for laying down his life in defense of the UN mandate in the Congo.

India's participation in the initial UNPKOs resulted in a growing pool of Indian military officers seconded to the UN whose professionalism and experience have contributed to UN peacekeeping doctrine. The contribution of Major-General

I.J. Rikhye, appointed as the first Military Adviser to the UN Secretary General between 1960-1967, was seminal in this context. The three core principles of effective UN peacekeeping were identified based on the experience of UNPKOs on the ground. These are deployment with the consent of the parties, impartiality in operations, and non-use of force except in self-defense and defense of the mandate.

Subsequent contributions to UN peacekeeping doctrine by Indian military officers have built on this, both at UN Headquarters (where two Indian Generals have served as Military Advisers in recent years) and in the field (where 15 Indian Generals have acted as Force Commanders with distinction).

The end of the Cold War resulted in a mushrooming of crises. More than 20 new UNPKOs were deployed between 1989-1994 alone. India's contributions to these new operations rose significantly. Three broad areas have emerged where India's contributions have made a difference.

The first area is in making use of UN peacekeeping across the world to ensure a political transition to peace. Such UNPKOs include UNPROFOR in the former Yugoslavia, whose first Force Commander was India's Lt. General Satish Nambiar; UNTAC in Cambodia; ONUSAL in El Salvador; ONUMOZ in Mozambique; UNOSOM in Somalia; UNAVEM in Angola; UNAMSIL in Sierra Leone; UNMEE in Ethiopia-Eritrea; and UNMIT in East Timor.

The second area is in augmenting peacebuilding activities by encouraging and mentoring the strengthening of national governance institutions. UNTAG saw Indian peacekeepers assist in the creation of the institutions of an independent Namibia. India became the first country to demonstrate the effectiveness of women as UN peacekeepers in peacebuilding with the deployment of the first all-female formed police unit (FFPU) to the UNPKO in Liberia (UNMIL) in 2007. When UNMIL was wound up in February 2018, President Sirleaf of Liberia commented: "The contribution you have made in inspiring Liberian women, imparting in them the spirit of professionalism and encouraging them to join operations that protect the nation, for that we will always be grateful."

The third area is in leading the ground level response to new challenges, while the UN Security Council remains ineffective in implementing its decisions, due to reasons set out unanimously by world leaders at the 2005 UN World Summit which mandated reforms of the Security Council. The protection of civilians caught in intra-state conflicts is one issue where India's UN peacekeepers have made a positive difference, especially in complex UNPKOs like MONUSCO in the Democratic Republic of Congo and UNMISS in South Sudan. Going beyond the call of duty, Indian UN peacekeepers have volunteered medical services, including veterinary support, and engineering services, in these UNPKOs, which has contributed to sustaining the livelihood of conflict-impacted local communities.

The challenges faced by India's troops contributed to UNPKOs today include terrorist threats to the UN by non-state actors. In UNDOF, deployed on the Golan Heights of Syria, Indian UN military officers were the first to confront such challenges by the Jabhat al-Nusra terrorist group which took UN peacekeepers hostage in 2014.

A bigger challenge for troop-contributing countries like India is the denial by the permanent members of the Security Council to participate in "decisions of the Security Council" concerning the deployment of her troops, as provided for in Article 44 of the UN Charter.

3802 troops from UN member-states have given their lives defending the UN Charter between 1948-2018. The highest number (164) are from India. India has launched a virtual wall of remembrance for her peacekeepers. The UN General Assembly has approved constructing a Memorial to all fallen UN peacekeepers. As Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi has emphasized: "It would be most fitting if the proposed memorial wall to the fallen peacekeepers is created quickly."

Singapore to reduce military training after actor Aloysius Pang's death

SINGAPORE (TIP): Singapore's military said January 24 it will reduce the length, intensity and frequency of its training programs after an actor in the reserves died from injuries he sustained overseas.

Aloysius Pang was on a military training exercise in New Zealand when a gun barrel was lowered on a large artillery device he was helping to repair Saturday. It crushed his abdomen and chest.

The defense ministry said Pang had been put on life support following surgeries to repair his damaged organs. Pang died at Waikato Hospital on Thursday. He was 28.

In a briefing, Chief of Defence Force Melvyn Ong said the Singapore Armed Forces will modify its training programs in the weeks ahead.

"This reduction of training tempo ... will be enforced for as long as it takes for us to get it right. And we want to do it right, we want to do it safe for every activity, we want to do it right every time," Ong said, according to The Straits Times newspaper.

Singapore mandates that young men serve in its armed forces, police force or civil defense force. Most serve full time for two years and then have annual training obligations. Pang had completed his full-time service, and was an armament technician whose rank was corporal first class. (AP)

Clarify plans for transitional justice process, Nepal govt told

KATHMANDU (TIP): The international community led by the United Nations January 24 sought a commitment from the K P Oli-led Nepal government to ensure that the transitional justice process, bringing the Maoists and government together under the Comprehensive Peace Accord 12 years ago, is taken forward seriously.

The Nepal government was asked to "clarify to the public its plans to take the transitional justice process forward in the ongoing year", according to a joint statement signed by the embassies of Australia, Germany, Finland, France, Norway, Switzerland, Britain, US, and members of the European Union and United Nations.

The joint statement comes in wake of the government's move to throttle investigations by two designated commissions by not giving them adequate powers and jurisdiction ahead of the expiry of their four-year term on February 1. (Indian express)

Pakistan Unveils Tax Cuts, Incentives To Boost Growth

ISLAMABAD (TIP): Pakistani Finance Minister Asad Umar unveiled a package of measures on January 23 to boost exports and investment and help Islamabad address a severe balance of payments squeeze that has forced it to turn to the International Monetary Fund for help.

Announcing measures to cut red tape, lower taxes for small and medium-sized businesses and cutting taxes on imports of industrial raw materials, he said the government had to improve conditions for local businesses to bring its public finances under control.

"Until there is investment, the country's economy cannot move forward," he told parliament above the jeers of opposition lawmakers. "This is not a budget, it is a reform package."

He said a full economic medium-term reform package would be presented next week. With growth set to drop to around 4 percent this year from 5.8 percent last year, a yawning current account deficit and a fiscal deficit of almost 7 percent of gross domestic product, Pakistan faces heavy pressure to reform its economy. Since coming to power in August, much of the government's effort has focused on staving off a balance of payments crisis that has seen its foreign exchange reserves dwindle to cover only two months of import payments.

Pakistan has opened talks with the IMF and although there has so far been no agreement on the terms of what would be its 13th bailout since the 1980s, Prime Minister Imran Khan's government has pledged reforms to bring down its current account deficit, which the IMF expects to reach 5.3 percent of GDP this year.

"We need to create an economy where this IMF programme will be Pakistan's last," Umar said.

Pakistan has invested great hopes in the China Pakistan Economic Corridor, part of the mammoth Belt and Road Initiative but it has had to absorb the impact of high imports of capital equipment the project has required. In addition, strong demand for consumer products and energy costs in past years have pushed the current account deficit wider, leaving the government struggling to bring it back under control.

Umar said taxes on imported luxury cars would be raised, while local manufacturers would be helped by a cut in import duty on imported raw materials and on machinery imported into special economic zones.

Customs duty would also be cut on equipment for renewable energy generations for five years, in a bid to ease a chronic energy crisis that has left Pakistani businesses and households suffering repeated power outages and gas supply interruptions.

In addition, a series of tax measures would be introduced to help the local stock market, with a removal of withholding tax and measures to allow capital losses to be carried over from one year to the next. (NDTV)

Sri Lanka Opposition Attacks PM Wickremesinghe Over New Constitution

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (TIP): Sri Lanka's Opposition leader Mahinda Rajapaksa on January 23 slammed the efforts being made to formulate a new Constitution, saying Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe's government does not have political moral to introduce it and should therefore hold fresh polls.

Mr Rajapaksa was speaking in parliament on the report of the experts panel presented in the Constitutional assembly by Mr Wickremesinghe two weeks ago.

Sri Lanka's former strongman, who attempted to overthrow Wickremesinghe with the help of President Maithripala Sirisena last year, criticised the prime minister's statements that the country will remain indivisible and united even after the new Constitution is enacted.

The new Constitution would weaken the parliament and "immeasurably strengthen provincial legislatures" Mr Rajapaksa said.

Since the presentation of the report, Mr Rajapaksa has been alleging that the government is drafting a new Constitution to appease the main Tamil political party - Tamil National Alliance (TNA) and that the new Constitution would harm the Sinhala majority community "the turning point at which the unitary state becomes a federal state" Mr Rajapaksa said.

Mr Rajapaksa is also critical of the devolved police powers for provinces as advocated in the report. He told Parliament that Mr. Wickremesinghe's government lacked political moral to introduce a new Constitution and therefore they should hold a fresh parliamentary poll.

It appears that the current constitutional process had run into the same historical problems which stopped efforts by various governments to address the Tamil demand for political recognition.

Prime Minister Wickremesinghe maintains that there is no draft constitution and the process was still open for all concerned to make a joint effort to come up with a final draft.

The LTTE fought a bloody separatist war to create a separate Tamil homeland in the north and east provinces.

With the military defeat of the LTTE in 2009, the main Tamil political party has taken a much conciliatory attitude by shedding the demand for a separate state. (NDTV)

Blast kills 2 civilians in Afghanistan

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN (TIP): At least two civilians were killed and more than 20 others wounded when an improvised explosive device (IED) blasted in eastern Afghanistan on January 22, an official confirmed. Habib Shah, public health director in the Khost province, told Anadolu Agency that an IED attached to a motorcycle blew up in the Kabul Adda area of provincial capital around 11 a.m. local time (0630 GMT).

He confirmed that all victims of the blast are civilians who were going through everyday life when the blast ripped through the crowded area.

On Monday, another IED blast in the neighboring Paktika province killed six civilians.

There has been no immediate claim of responsibility for the attacks.

The UN Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) is yet to issue its annual report on the civilian casualties in the country. However, the quarterly report in October documented 8,050 civilian victims, including 2,798 deaths. (www.aa.com)

Police Complaint Filed After Nepal Spiritual Leader's Followers Disappear

KATHMANDU (TIP): The Nepal police have launched a search for five missing followers of a Buddhist spiritual leader, popularly known as "Buddha Boy", after their families filed complaints against the godman, officials said in Kathmandu on January 25.

Ram Bahadur Bomjon gained global media attention in 2005 after his devotees claimed that he meditated for months without food, water or sleeping.

Later, he got embroiled into controversies after several of his followers and their relatives accused him of assaulting them sexually and physically. However, his aides rejected the accusations.

According to the police, following complaints of the families of five of Bomjon's followers, they launched a search operation.

The families in their complaint claimed that the followers, including women, have gone missing from his ashram located in Bara district. On Sunday, the family of a nun from Sarlahi, who has been reportedly missing from the ashram for the past nine years, has asked the police to find her whereabouts.

Earlier, the families of four other followers, including a girl, had filed police complaints stating that they lost touch with them in the ashram of the godman. (NDTV)

In Kolkata on January 1, Dr. Raju spoke at Kolkata Rotary Club, which is the oldest Rotary Club in India and which will be celebrating its centenary towards the end of 2019. Dr. Raju was the keynote speaker on childhood blindness.

Addressing the Rotarians he complimented them for their tremendous achievement in "wiping out Polio in 28 years. He exhorted them to evince the same zeal in respect of preventing avoidable blindness from the face of India.

"If Rotary puts in its effort for as many years, we can have a world without blindness, he said, reminding that "80% of our learning comes through vision". It needs only three wills- political will, professional will, and people's will to achieve the desired goal. He quoted US Ambassador Galbraith, the hyper educated economist of the world who underscored the importance of education when he said, "Education is the most effective equalizer".

While in Kolkata, he took the opportunity of spending 2 days at the Asiatic Library where he studied the original Bowerman manuscripts dealing with Yoga.

Dr. Raju delivered a lecture at Andhra Medical College at Vishakhapatnam on January 2. He also attended a meeting at the Eye Bank where he pointed out that corneal blindness which is rampant in India, is preventable. In fact, 70% of it can be prevented through education and affordable primary care in every village.

Next, in Kakinada on January 5, Dr. Raju attended the Diamond Jubilee celebrations of Rangaraya Medical College where he was honored for his work by the Vice President of India.

However, the most absorbing engagement for Dr. Raju was lecturing to staff and examining patients at the Eye Foundation of America supported Goutami Eye Institute in Rajahmundry. ## AARP Celebrates Asian American & Pacific Islander Hero Award Winner Denny Chan of Justice in Aging

PASADENA, CA (TIP): AARP celebrated its Asian American and Pacific Islander Hero Award winner Denny Chan for his work using the power of the law to fight senior poverty at Justice in Aging on Wednesday, January 23 at the AARP California Office in Pasadena, CA.

Facing language barriers and limited resources, many older Asian American and Pacific Islanders find themselves struggling to gain access to the health care and other services they need and are entitled to by law. As a staff attorney at Justice in Aging, Chan advocates for the needs of older adults, especially those with limited English proficiency.

Never far from Chan's mind is his maternal grandmother who doesn't speak English and whose journey mirrors those of the individuals he helps.

"Older AAPI adults living in or at risk of poverty not only are one unexpected expense away from homelessness or one fall away from a hospital visit, but they also face a complex health care system made up of people who don't necessarily speak their language," said Denny Chan. "At Justice in Aging, we advocate every day for laws and policies that better protect older Americans, fighting for healthcare, economic security, and access to the courts, no matter what language they speak."

AARP's AAPI Hero Award is a nationwide contest that celebrates unsung heroes - volunteer and staff members who work diligently behind the scenes in nonprofit organizations serving AAPI age 50 and older.

Khanna, Sanders Introduce Sweeping Plan in House and Senate to Lower Drug Prices

WASHINGTON (TIP): Indian American Congressman Ro Khanna (D-Calif.), Senator Bernie Sanders (I-Vt.) and Rep. Elijah Cummings (D-Md.) along with more than two dozen of their colleagues in the House and Senate introduced sweeping reforms earlier this month that would dramatically reduce prescription drug prices in the United States.

The plan to reduce the skyrocketing cost of prescription drugs includes three bills:

1. The Prescription Drug Price Relief Act, which would peg the price of prescription drugs in the United States to the median price in five major countries: Canada, the United Kingdom, France, Germany and Japan;
2. The Medicare Drug Price Negotiation Act, which would direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) to negotiate lower prices for prescription drugs under Medicare Part D;
3. The Affordable and Safe Prescription Drug Importation Act, which would allow patients, pharmacists and wholesalers to import safe, affordable medicine from Canada and other major countries.

The Prescription Drug Price Relief Act

This bill will bring down drug prices, says Khanna would lower drug prices in the United States by 50 percent according to Dean Baker. Additionally, the U.S. government could save close to $360 billion over 10 years if Medicare negotiated the same prices for drugs as people in Canada pay, according to the Center for Economic and Policy Research.

"There is absolutely no reason for the big pharmaceutical companies to make Americans pay higher prescription drug prices than they charge our friends in Canada, Germany, and the UK. Today we're sending big pharma a message: market exclusivity is a privilege, and when you abuse that by price gouging the sick and aging, then you lose that privilege," Khanna said. "This bill will bring down drug prices by taking on monopolies and boosting prescription drug competition."

Meanwhile, in Canada and other major countries, the same medications, manufactured by the same companies, in the same factories are available for a fraction of the price compared to the United States. In 2017, Americans spent $1,208 per person on prescription drugs while Canadians spent $860 and people in the U.K. spent $476.

The measures introduced were overwhelmingly supported by the American people. Seventy-two percent of Americans favor allowing the importation of prescription drugs from Canada, and 92 percent of the American people support allowing Medicare to negotiate drug prices.

Indian American Assembly member Ash Kalra named Chair of Labor Committee

SAN JOSE (TIP): Indian American Assembly member Ash Kalra (D-San Jose), the first Indian American elected to the State Legislature, has been named Chair of the Assembly Committee on Labor and Employment Committee for the 2019-20 legislative session by Assembly Speaker Anthony Rendon (D-Lakewood). "I am grateful for this leadership opportunity and would like to thank Speaker Rendon for appointing me chair of the Labor Committee," said Kalra. "Having served on the Committee, I have been proud to author and support legislation that protect the health and safety of workers, promote fair and timely wages, and combat income inequality. As the new chair, I look forward to continuing these efforts and guiding the committee in fostering innovation in the workplace and envisioning the future of work in our state."

The committee's primary jurisdictions are wages, hours, employment discrimination, Cal-OSHA, employment development, and public job programs.

Prior to being elected to the California State Assembly, Assembly member Kalra served two terms on the San Jose City Council, where he championed protections for City employees, including police and firefighters, and was an outspoken voice in support of maintaining San Jose's pension commitments to its workers. Assembly member Kalra was previously Chair of the Aging and Long Term Care Committee, of which he remains a member, and continues to serve on the Education, Judiciary, and Water, Parks, and Wildlife committees.

Trump associate Roger Stone charged with obstruction, lying to Congress and witness tampering

WASHINGTON (TIP): Roger Stone, a longtime Donald Trump associate, was indicted by a grand jury on charges brought by special counsel Robert Mueller. He appeared in court in Florida, Friday, January 25. Special Counsel Mueller alleges that Stone sought stolen emails from WikiLeaks that could damage Trump's opponents at the direction of a senior Trump Campaign official.

The court filings shed some startling new light on how President Donald Trump's campaign allegedly eagerly tried to benefit from Russian meddling in real time.

Stone denies colluding with the Russian government and said he plans to plead not guilty and fight the charges, which include obstruction, lying to Congress and witness tampering. Stone is the sixth Trump aide or adviser charged by Mueller and the 34th person overall. The nearly two-year-old probe has exposed multiple contacts between Trump associates and Russia during the campaign and transition period and revealed efforts by several to conceal those communications.

SC notice to Centre on plea challenging passport rules

NEW DELHI (TIP): The Supreme Court sought Centre's response Friday on a PIL questioning the government move to grant "automatic citizenship" to Hindus, Sikhs, Buddhists, Jains, Parsis and Christians, who migrated to India from Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan till 2014 end, owing to alleged religious persecution. A bench led by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi issued notice to the Tripura government, MEA and Union MHA on a petition filed by NGO Tripura People's Front through advocate Manish Goswami. It gave three weeks to the authorities to respond.

CVC asks CBI to act against Alok Verma in corruption case

NEW DELHI (TIP): The Central Vigilance Commission (CVC) this month asked the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) to take "necessary action" against its ex-director Alok Verma in a case involving a bribe allegedly paid to him by Sana Satish Babu, and the Department of Personnel and Trading (DoPT) to initiate disciplinary proceedings against him — both based on a CVC report submitted to the Supreme Court in November, according to three officials in the federal investigation agency and DoPT who spoke on condition of anonymity.

According to the officials, a complaint is likely to be filed against Verma over an allegation that middleman Sana Satish Babu paid a Rs 2 crore bribe to him in the Moin Qureshi case. DoPT will look into an incident involving the exclusion of the name of a key suspect Rakesh Saxena from a complaint registered by CBI in the Indian Railways Catering and Tourist Corp (IRCTC) case, allegedly at Verma's behest.

NEW DELHI (TIP): The biggest democracy in the world is due to elect its leader for the next five years in fewer than 100 days. And the race has just become more interesting.

On Wednesday (January 23), the main Indian opposition Congress party announced that Priyanka Gandhi - the younger sister of party leader Rahul Gandhi and one of the youngest scions of the country's most fabled political family - had officially entered politics. The popular 47-year-old accepted a senior position and will be in charge of the party's affairs in the key state of Uttar Pradesh, which sends 80 MPs to the 545-strong lower house of parliament and has produced nine Indian prime ministers.

'Crowd-puller'

Priyanka Gandhi's appointment is expected to significantly help her brother in mounting a credible challenge to the dominance of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's BJP.

In the last elections in 2014, Congress saw its seat count in the lower house of parliament fall to just 44, while its vote share in Uttar Pradesh dropped to about eight percent.

Analysts said the party needed new ideas and new faces to revive their fortunes.

"This was in the offing," Said Naqvi, a journalist and political analyst, told Al Jazeera. "She (Priyanka Gandhi) is a definite a crowd-puller and this decision will certainly weigh on the ruling BJP's gameplay now."

Political dynasty

Priyanka Gandhi's family has long dominated Indian politics. Her great grandfather, Jawaharlal Nehru, was the first

I don't hate Modi but will fight him to ensure he doesn't become PM again, says Rahul

NEW DELHI (TIP): Congress president Rahul Gandhi, who has been attacking Prime Minister Narendra Modi on various issues, said on Friday that he doesn't "hate" him but only had difference of views.

Gandhi, who had hugged the Prime Minister in the Lok Sabha last year, said he feels like giving Modi a "hug whenever he abuses me".

He said he will fight Modi and try to ensure that he does not become the Prime Minister again after the upcoming Lok Sabha elections.

"We don't want a bureaucratic dictatorship. We want people's democratic state," Gandhi said while addressing a town hall meeting here. Attacking the BJP and the RSS, Gandhi said the "abuses" he received from these organisations was the "best thing" that had happened to him as a politician and a human being.

"I realise PM Modi disagrees with me and I disagree with him. I will fight him and I will try and make sure that he is not the prime minister but I don't hate him. I give him the right to have his opinion," he said while addressing 'The Odisha Dialogue' event in Odisha.

Gandhi has been singularly attacking Modi over various issues like Rafale fighter deal, demonetisation, GST, farmers' crisis. Yesterday, he even described Modi as "a symbol of hatred".

The Congress President said that unlike the BJP, the Congress party has a dynamic process which allows it to listen to the people.

"I am sorry to say that the Congress, of course, has a chaotic conversation. We allow our leaders to talk to each other. Sometimes, we even have disagreements. Believe me, Mr. Modi's entire cabinet is disagreeing with him but none of them has the guts to open his mouth," he said.

"Ours is a dynamic process, we listen to the people. Not like Mr Narendra Modi who thinks he knows everything. There is no scope for feedback. This is the basic difference between us and the BJP," Gandhi said.

He said India should be run by its 1.2 billion people but "RSS wants to penetrate into all other institutions and control them. One set of people; one ideology should not run the country and that is the broad direction in which he would push."

He went on to add, "We have to do a lot of repair work because what has been done over the last five years is actually devastating to the country. For the first time in history, the Supreme Court judges came out and said they are not allowed to do our work. And this has never happened in Indian history. You can see the imprint of RSS."

While targeting the Modi government, Gandhi said while there was a talk about high economic growth rate, nobody was talking about jobs.

"Today, if you listen to the conversation in India and read newspapers, the main thing people talk about is growth. If we have 9 percent growth, we are doing well, if we are having 7 percent, we are not doing so well and if we are having 6 percent growth, we have a real problem. Nobody talks about jobs. You can grow at 9 percent and still don't have jobs," he said.

While emphasizing the need for decentralization power, he said there is a connection between Modi and Odisha Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik.

Priyanka Gandhi's entry into politics: Is she Cong's trump card?

prime minister of independent India; her grandmother, Indira, and father, Rajiv, were also prime ministers, while her mother, Sonia, is a former Congress party president, who headed the party for nearly two decades, until Rahul took over in 2017.

Priyanka Gandhi herself is no stranger to politics but had confined herself to Amethi and Raebareli, constituencies which are represented by her brother and mother respectively.

She is married to businessman Robert Vadra, who the BJP has accused of corruption in his business dealings. The Congress party has dismissed the allegations as "politically motivated".

In recent months, Congress has been on an upward curve, wresting power from the BJP in December's regional elections in the key states of Rajasthan, Chhattisgarh and Madhya Pradesh. The results dealt Modi his biggest defeat since taking office in 2014, boosting the opposition before the national polls, when more than 900 million eligible voters are expected to pick the country's members of parliament who, in turn, will elect the prime minister.

'Game-changer'

So far, most opinion polls have the BJP leading the race, with Modi's popularity remaining high.

The outcome, however, is not seen as a foregone conclusion.

This month, the leaders of the regional Samajwadi Party (SP) and the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) announced the creation of a potentially formidable coalition aiming to challenge Modi. Meanwhile, in a show of strength, Mamata Banerjee, chief minister of the eastern state of West Bengal, a few days ago organised a massive rally attended by most of the parties opposing the BJP.

And now, Priyanka Gandhi's official foray into the state's politics is expected to add more pressure on Modi and his ruling party.

"Priyanka's entry is a game-changer," Jai Prakash, a farmer from Amethi, told Al Jazeera. "People see a reflection of Indira Gandhi in her. She is more charismatic than Rahul," he added. "She is Congress's trump card."

Supreme Court refuses to stay 10% quota for poor in jobs, education

NEW DELHI (TIP): The Supreme Court on Friday refused to stay the executive order of the Centre implementing the law providing for 10 per cent quota for the poor in jobs and higher education. A Supreme Court bench led by Chief Justice of India Ranjan Gogoi issued notice to the Centre seeking response in four weeks.

The Supreme Court also refused to pass orders to the effect that whatever appointments they make under the new reservation policy would be subject to the outcome of the case before it. "We are examining the matter," said the Supreme Court bench.

The matter would be heard after the pleadings are complete. The court was hearing a public interest litigation (PIL) challenging the recently enacted law to provide 10 per cent reservation in government jobs and higher education to economically weaker sections from unreserved, otherwise referred to as general category. The petition challenging the Constitution (103rd) Amendment Act was filed by an NGO, Youth for Equality and it contends that the law alters the "basic structure" of the Constitution.

The legislation got Parliament's approval earlier this month amid Opposition parties questioning the Union government's "haste" in pushing the bill through months ahead of 2019 Lok Sabha elections and in the aftermath of the BJP's defeat in the Hindi heartland states of Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh.

The petition cites a Supreme Court order by a nine-judge bench in 1992 Indra Sawhney case stating that economic backwardness cannot be the basis of reservation in jobs and education. "Such an Amendment is hence, vulnerable and ought to be struck down as it merely negates a binding judgement," says the PIL.

The PIL further argues that the new quota law breaches the cap of 50 per cent total reservation in jobs and education. This ceiling was fixed by the top court in the M Nagaraj case in 2006. Under the existing constitutional arrangements, reservation in jobs and education is available to the members of the Scheduled Caste (SC), Scheduled Tribe (ST) and Other Backward

Classes (OBC) communities.

The government has, however, maintained that the amended law can withstand legal scrutiny. Speaking during the debate on the Bill in the Lok Sabha, Finance Minister Arun Jaitley said, "The apex court had stated that the rule of 50% [cap on reservations] applies only to reservation for backward classes... This bill is for social and economic justice."

The PIL has also challenged the new quota law on the ground that the amendment provides for reservation in private unaided educational institutions, which has been clearly barred by the top court through two previous judgments.

Militant-turned soldier awarded Ashok Chakra posthumously

NEW DELHI (TIP): Lance Naik Nazir Ahmad Wani, a surrendered militant who became a soldier, will be posthumously awarded India's highest peacetime gallantry award, the Ashok Chakra, on Republic Day for his courage during a fierce encounter in which six terrorists were killed in Kashmir last November.

Wani belonged to an army unit raised 15 years ago with surrendered militants as an experiment to rewrite the rules of counter-terror operations in Kashmir.

President Ram Nath Kovind will present the award to Wani's wife, Mahajabeen Wani, at the 70th Republic Day parade, the army said on Thursday. Wani, who was 38 when he died, will be the first soldier from Kashmir to be awarded the Ashok Chakra. Thus far, 88 individuals have been awarded the Ashok Chakra; of these 68 have been awarded posthumously.

Exactly two months ago, on November 25, 2018, the army received intelligence on the presence of six heavily-armed terrorists at Hirapur village in south Kashmir's Shopian district. Wani and his squad were asked to block the terrorists' most likely escape route, a standard drill during such operations. The soldiers closed in on the target house and positioned themselves to engage the terrorists at close range.

"Sensing danger, the terrorists attempted breaching the inner cordon, firing indiscriminately and lobbing grenades. Undeterred by the situation, L/Nk Nazir held ground and eliminated one hard core terrorist [a district commander of LeT] in a fierce exchange at close range," said a notification issued by the President's secretariat on Wednesday.

Nazir's second kill followed a few minutes later when he fearlessly stormed into the house, amid bullets and grenades flying around him.

"Seeing the foreign terrorist escaping from the window, he [Wani] encountered him in a hand to hand combat situation. Despite being severely wounded, L/Nk Nazir eliminated the terrorist," the notification added.

In the ensuing gun battle, Wani was hit multiple times, and took a shot to the head, army officials said. Bleeding heavily, the soldier continued to engage the remaining terrorists and injured a third one at close range. His action helped his squad kill the remaining terrorists. Wani even helped evacuate his wounded colleagues before succumbing to his injuries.

This was not the first time Wani demonstrated courage in combat, according to army officials. He was twice decorated with the Sena Medal for gallantry in counter-terrorism operations in 2007 and 2018.

He was a hero right from the beginning, the army said in a statement, adding that he operated with Rashtriya Rifles units in Kashmir to fight the onslaught of Pakistan-supported terror outfits. Wani joined the Indian Army's 162 Infantry Battalion (Territorial Army), Jammu and Kashmir Light Infantry, in 2004.

Patna Sikh shrine to revamp gurdwaras in Bangladesh

PATNA (TIP): The managing committee of Takht Sri Patna Sahib is drawing a roadmap for the renovation and beautification of gurdwaras in Bangladesh. Patna Sahib shrine is the birthplace of 10th Sikh master Guru Gobind Singh and second biggest shrine of Sikhs in the country. It looks after maintenance and development of gurdwaras in the east and south India, besides those in Bangladesh.

At a crucial meeting held last week, the shrine management committee decided to send a delegation to Bangladesh to study the condition of gurdwaras in the country and chalk out an effective plan to revamp them.

Committee's general secretary Mahendra Pal Singh Dhillon, said, "We have learnt that the gurdwaras in Bangladesh are in need of a revamp. One Dr Parmeet Singh, researcher and professor at Punjabi University, Patiala, has been given the responsibility on behalf of the Takht committee to travel to Bangladesh to study the prevailing condition of the historical gurdwaras in the country where the founder of Sikhism Guru Nanak and Guru Teg Bahadur had visited. Proofs of their footprints can be found in those gurdwaras."

He said Dr Singh will assess and submit a report on the work to be done for bringing back the shrines to their original grandeur. Bangladesh till the late sixties had in all 18 gurdwaras.

CBI registers new case against Hooda in land scam; searches held at 30 locations

NEW DELHI (TIP): The CBI on Friday registered a new case against former Haryana chief minister Bhupinder Singh Hooda and others over alleged irregularities in land allocation and carried out searches at 30 locations in Delhi-NCR, officials said.

A team of officials from the agency arrived early morning at Hooda's residence in Rohtak, they said.

According to the officials, 30 locations in the Delhi-NCR region are part of the probe, the officials said.

The agency is tight-lipped about the details of the case as the search operation is under way.

The case is understood to be related to alleged irregularities in land allotment, sources said.

SC/ST Act: SC to consider listing of Centre's review, petitions together

NEW DELHI (TIP): The Supreme Court on Friday said it would consider listing the Centre's review and petitions challenging the amendments to the SC/ST Act 2018, together before an appropriate bench. A bench headed by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi said it would consider and do the needful. Attorney General KK Venugopal said a bench headed by Justice AK Sikri had on Thursday passed an order, saying it would be appropriate to hear the Centre's review and writ petitions against the AC/ST Act 2018 together.

The apex court had on Thursday refused to stay the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Amendment Act, 2018, which restored the provision that no anticipatory bail be granted to the accused.

ISRO launches student-made satellite

NEW DELHI (TIP): The Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) launched its 46th flight of Polar Satellite Launch Vehicle (PSLV-C44) and put into space Microsat-R, an imaging satellite and student-made Kalamsat, a communication satellite named after former President Abdul Kalam, from the Satish Dhawan Space Centre in Sriharikota.

In PSLV-C44, the fourth stage (PS4) of the vehicle will be moved to a higher circular orbit so as to establish an orbital platform for carrying out experiments.

Kalamsat, a student payload, will be the first to use PS4 as orbital platform. PSLV-C44 will also carry Microsat-R, an imaging satellite.

'I have to stay alive': Gay Brazilian lawmaker gives up seat amid threats

SAO PAULO (BRAZIL) (TIP): An openly gay federal lawmaker in Brazil who has frequently clashed with the country's new far-right president said January 25 that he was giving up his seat because of death threats.

The lawmaker, Jean Wyllys, a fierce advocate for gay rights who was due to be sworn in for a third term in February, said in an interview with newspaper Folha de S. Paulo that "this environment isn't safe for me" after the assassination of a political ally in March and violence that followed the election of President Jair Bolsonaro in October.

"For the future of this cause," Wyllys said, "I have to stay alive. I don't want to be a martyr." He added that he was currently on vacation abroad and did not plan to return to Brazil.

Wyllys called Bolsonaro, a former colleague of his in the lower house of Congress, "a president who always vilified me, who always openly insulted me, who was always homophobic with me."

In 2016, Wyllys responded by spitting at Bolsonaro during the hearing to impeach President Dilma Rousseff. Bolsonaro, before reinventing himself as a fighter of political corruption and rampant violence, was best known for delivering verbal attacks on women, black people and gay people from the congressional floor.

Shortly after Wyllys' interview was published, Bolsonaro, who was in Davos, Switzerland, for the World Economic Forum, tweeted "Great day!" and a thumbs-up emoticon. Supporters weighed in, many with homophobic comments.

Wyllys has been the target of death threats for years, but he said those threats had become more severe after Marielle Franco, a human rights advocate who was his friend and political ally, was assassinated. (NYT)

Down to its last two villages in Syria, ISIS still fights back

BAGHDAD (TIP): Along two sharp curves of the Euphrates River in northeastern Syria, the Islamic State is fighting to hold on to the last speck of the vast territory it once controlled.

At its height, the group enforced its brutal version of Islamic rule over more than 60,000 square miles in Syria and Iraq. It is now squeezed into two villages occupying 6 square miles. There, its foot soldiers have been engaged in heavy clashes with the US-backed and Kurdish-led militia Syrian Democratic Forces who are battling to take back the turf, according to a spokesman for the militia and observers in the area.

While some of the extremists are fighting to the end, local officials say the militants have been surrendering by the dozens, repeating a pattern observed in other cities shortly before the group was overrun.

Even with the end of the group's self-proclaimed caliphate in Syria and Iraq within view, Western officials caution that this is not the end of the violent threat posed by the group. It has continued carrying out devastating attacks as it reverts to its insurgent roots, including a suicide bombing that killed four Americans in Manbij, Syria, last week. "I think this is the end of a phase, and the beginning of a subsequent fight," said Col. Sean Ryan, a Baghdad-based spokesman for the US-backed coalition fighting the group. "Now they will resume smaller attacks. Everyone needs to remain vigilant."

The Islamic State's ambitions have always been global, and its affiliates in Afghanistan, West Africa, the Philippines, Yemen, Somalia and elsewhere have been growing, experts say. And just inside Syria and Iraq, the group still has between 20,000 and 30,000 fighters, according to separate estimates by the Pentagon inspector general, the United Nations and the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

While many fighters have been killed since those estimates were calculated late last year, analysts say that large numbers have simply melted into the population.

The two villages still held by the group — Marashidah and Baghuz Fawqani — represent the final 0.01 percent of the caliphate in Syria and Iraq. They sit inside the hook created by two bends in the Euphrates. The terrain is lush near the river and then increasingly desiccated farther out.

After months of grueling war that has claimed the lives of thousands of fighters in Syria, the Kurdish-led militia has recently made significant inroads. Some officials are optimistically declaring that the last two villages will fall in a matter of days. Others estimate the final battles, which come as the United States prepares to withdraw 2,000 troops in the coming months, could take as long as three weeks.

"Yesterday, 60 fighters — among them 50 foreigners — surrendered to our forces, and the number was 30 fighters the day before," Shervan Derwish, spokesman of the military council in Manbij, said Wednesday. "The remaining Daesh fighters are split between those who want to surrender and those who want to fight until the end," he said, using the Arabic acronym for the Islamic State.

It's not surprising that a majority of those who surrendered are foreign fighters. The Islamic State, as it established its caliphate in 2014, recruited from 100 countries and tens of thousands of people flocked to its territory.

Unlike the local population, the foreigners often do not speak Arabic fluently, and their non-Arab features mean that they cannot blend in with the local population. Those handing themselves over, including the wives and children of foreign fighters, are bitterly complaining that their local counterparts were able to slip away, leaving them to fend for themselves. The leaders of the Syrian Democratic Forces say a decision to alter their battle plan has allowed them to advance more quickly on the Islamic State holdouts.

During previous assaults, the militia usually attacked from a single front. Then came an aggressive counterattack by the Islamic State in October in the village of Sousa that inflicted heavy casualties on the coalition and allowed the militants to regain areas lost days before.

"After that, the leadership took a decision to change tactics, and moved us to attacking on two — or even three — axes so that the small force that ISIS has cannot counter," said Zana Amedi, a spokesman for the Syrian Democratic Forces. "Right now, the operation is going on two axes — from the north, we are attacking the village of Marashidah, and from the south, the village of Baghuz."

In recent days, the Islamic State has shown that it is still a potent force by leading back-to-back attacks on U.S. forces.

The first was the suicide explosion at a restaurant in Manbij, which killed 15 people, including two U.S. service members, a Defense Department civilian and a military contractor. The second was a strike on a U.S. convoy passing south of the town of Hasakah, which claimed no lives but was nevertheless worrying because of its targeted nature.

"If they are able to operate in Manbij, which is 300 kilometers away from where they hold territory, you tell me, are they defeated?" asked Amedi, the Syrian Democratic Forces spokesman. "ISIS has power, ISIS has sleeper cells and ISIS has been preparing for this for years," he added. (New York Times)

Not aware of plans by Xi Jinping to visit India: Chinese Foreign Ministry

on Tuesday carried a report titled "Xi plans India visit, as diplomatic chess with US intensifies".

The story said, "Xi intends to visit India as early as February in a move seen at countering Washington's increasingly antagonistic trade policy and aggressive Indo-Pacific diplomacy."

When asked about the report, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Hua Chunying said, "You said this was reported by Japanese media. So it is quite interesting. I am not aware of what you said."

Hua said China and India are friendly neighbours.

"We attach importance to maintain high level exchanges. And the leader of the both the countries also maintain friendly communication and exchange," she said.

When pointed out that the Russian media also carried a similar report, Hua said, "Chinese media hasn't reported it and I am not aware of the information you mentioned".

"But we attach importance to our relations with India and we stand to maintain close communication at various levels," she said.

Officials sources here on Wednesday told PTI here that there was no proposal for Xi to visit India for the second informal summit with Prime Minister Modi.

Wuhan summit was the first such high-level meeting ever between Indian and Chinese leaders. It was conceived by both the sides following the 2017 military standoff at Doklam which ratcheted up tensions between the two countries. The two-day summit at Wuhan during which the two leaders closely interacted for hours on bilateral and international issues has paved the way for the two countries to normalise relations on all fronts putting behind the Doklam standoff.

Since then the two countries steadily normalised relations with intensified dialogue on various fronts, including the military and trade fronts.

Commerce Secretary Anup Wadhawan has concluded his two-day visit to China on Tuesday after talks with Chinese Vice Minister of Commerce Wang Shouwen and Zhang Jiwen, Chinese Vice Minister of General Administration of Customs of China (GACC), to enhance Indian exports to China to reduce the trade deficit of over USD 57 billion. (PTI)

BEIJING (TIP): China's Foreign Ministry said on January 25 that it was not aware about any plans of President Xi Jinping's visit to India in the next two months for the second informal summit with Prime Minister Narendra Modi as reported by a Japanese publication.

OSCAR Nominee NEVER LOOK AWAY Opens January 25

By Mabel Pais

"It's a galvanizing movie about art and freedom - and, in the character of a Nazi-era physician... about the secret sins of history."

- Variety magazine

"Few films today succeed in creating a sense of true grandeur and capturing the audience's imagination. NEVER LOOK AWAY is the best argument, the best reason for going to the movies."

- Wiedemann & Berg,
Co-Producers

"He (Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck) mobilizes incredible energy to realize his vision; he is a fighter, a force of nature. At the same time, he is a sensitive and curious intellectual, a brilliant creative person and an artist."

Academy Awards 2019 two-time nominee NEVER LOOK AWAY has been selected in the Best Foreign Language Film and Cinematography categories. A sweeping romantic historical drama, NEVER LOOK AWAY follows thirty years in the life of a great artist - loosely based on Gerhard Richter, one of the 20th century's most admired visual artists - played by Tom Schilling.

NEVER LOOK AWAY is Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck's 3rd feature film. He is the writer, director and producer of the movie.

His debut film THE LIVES OF OTHERS (2006) won the Academy Award® for Best Foreign Language Film, three European Film Awards (including for Best Film and Best Screenwriter), and seven German Film Awards (including for Best Feature Film, Best Direction, and Best Screenplay).

In NEVER LOOK AWAY, he returns to Germany where he explores a subject matter that is both unusual and compellingly ambitious, spanning three decades of German post-war history in a suspense-packed drama. It also makes use of a sweeping historical backdrop to tell a highly personal and emotional story through the portrayal of three human destinies. A gripping drama and moving family story inspired by real events, by what it means to create art, and by the search for an artistic voice of one's own.

Inspired by real events and spanning three eras of German history, NEVER LOOK AWAY tells the story of a young art student, Kurt (Tom Schilling) who falls in love with fellow student, Ellie (Paula Beer). Ellie's father, Professor Seeband (Sebastian Koch), a famous doctor, is dismayed at his daughter's choice of boyfriend, and vows to destroy the relationship. What neither of them knows is that their lives are already connected through a terrible crime Seeband committed decades ago.

"This film is for everyone who might be a bit bored with the triviality of so much of what is seen in movie theaters today," confirm Wiedemann & Berg. "Few films today succeed in creating a sense of true grandeur and capturing the audience's imagination. NEVER LOOK AWAY is the best argument, the best reason for going to the movies."

The Invisibles

By Mabel Pais

While Goebbels (Minister of Propaganda of the Third Reich in Nazi Germany) infamously declared Berlin "free of Jews," in February 1943 all Jews still remaining in Berlin as forced laborers are arrested; Nevertheless, approximately 7,000 Jews successfully go into hiding, and 1,700 of them will ultimately survive both war and persecution. THE INVISIBLES portrays the destinies of four young Berliners. Separated from their families, they are forced, day-by-day, to make decisions that could cost them their lives.

Claus Räfle's gripping docudrama traces the stories of four real-life survivors who learned to hide in plain sight.

Moving between cinemas, cafés and safe houses, they dodged Nazi officials and a dense network of spies and informants. Yet their prudence was at odds with their youthful recklessness, prompting them to join the resistance, forge passports, or pose as Aryan war widows. Masterfully weaving these story threads together, THE INVISIBLES is a testament to the resourcefulness, willpower and sheer chance needed to survive against incredible odds.

Hanni Levy (Alice Dwyer) is an orphan who has just turned seventeen. Completely on her own, she only narrowly escapes being arrested. She dyes her hair blond and becomes invisible to her persecutors, mingling among the many pedestrians on the Kurfürstendamm and often seizing the opportunity to disappear into dark movie theaters.

Cioma Schönhaus (Max Mauff), in order to avoid deportation, also takes on a different identity. Working as a passport forger, he joins his friend Ludwig Lichtwitz (Sergej Moya) and electrician Werner Scharff (Florian Lukas) in saving the lives of dozens of Jews in danger. With his regular income, Cioma even manages to regain a certain measure of normalcy, going on sailing trips and frequenting restaurants.

Eugen Friede (Aaron Altaras) is also forced to go into hiding, but is fortunate to arrive at a comfortable home with good meals and a flirtatious young woman, the daughter of his supportive host. Yet Eugen, too - like all of the "invisibles" - will soon be obligated to move on. He joins the resistance group led by Hans Winkler (Andreas Schmidt), which is active in distributing leaflets about the true deeds of the Third Reich.

Ruth Arndt (Ruby O. Fee), together with her friend Ellen (Viktoria Schulz), dreams of a life in America. But before contemplating an escape from Germany, the two young women disguise themselves as war widows and, in secret gatherings, serve black market delicacies in the home of a Nazi officer (Horst Günter Marx).

All of them live from one day to the next, fully aware that they could be arrested and deported at any moment. Their irrepressible will to live and ingenuity give them the hope that they might make it through until the end of the war . . .

Directed by Claus Räfle. Written by Claus Räfle and Alejandra López. Starring Max Mauff as Cioma Schoolhouse, Alice Dwyer as Hanni Levy, Ruby O. Fee as Ruth Arndt, Aaron Altaras as Eugen Friede, Victoria Schulz as Ellen Lewinsky, Florian Lukas.

THE MARCH OF THE REPUBLIC: INDIA CELEBRATES 70TH REPUBLIC DAY

India celebrates 70th Republic Day on January 26. One of the three national holidays in India, Republic Day is celebrated with great pomp and show throughout the nation each year.

Preparations begin almost a month before for the actual day. A massive parade is held which reflects a touch of modernity in the display of might and technology and the capabilities of growth in various sectors. While the parade symbolizes the power and force, the different regional tableaus reflect the cultural themes and motifs. Republic Day has a very significant place in the Indian history as India became a Republic from a British Dominion on this very day. Browse through the following lines to know all about the history and origin of Republic Day.

India became independent from the British Rule on 15th August, 1947. However, the country did not have its own constitution and wholly depended on the modified colonial Government of India Act, 1935. Also, India was headed by King George VI, until the adoption of the Indian Constitution in 1950. Prior to this, the seeds of a republican nation were sown by Pt. Jawaharlal Nehru in the Lahore session at the Indian National Congress at the midnight of 31st December, 1929 - 1st January, 1930.

The tricolor flag was unfurled by the nationalists present who took a pledge to celebrate "Purna Swaraj" (complete Independence) Day every year on 26th January, while continuing to fight for the establishment of a Sovereign Democratic Republic of India. The independence was achieved in 1947 while the professed pledge was redeemed on 26th January, 1950.

The Indian Constituent Assembly was called together on 9th December, 1946, where a committee was formed. Dr. B.R. Ambedkar became the chairman of the committee, who along with the other members drafted the Constitution. The Indian Constitution included 395 Articles and 8 Schedules. The Constitution was adopted by the Constituent Assembly on 26th November, 1949. In the following year on 26th January, 1950, the Constitution of India came into force and became a sovereign democratic republic of India, 894 days after the withdrawal of British Rule in 1947, which is why, it is said that India achieved its true independence on this day. Next, elections were held and Dr. Rajendra Prasad was elected as the first President of free India.

He took the oath at the Durban Hall in the Government House, which was followed by the Presidential drive along the five-mile route to the Irwin Stadium. He unfurled the National Flag at the stadium.

THE MARCH OF THE REPUBLIC

This transition of India into a sovereign democratic republic nation is indeed a historical event. The two-decade long journey, right from the conceptualization of the dream in 1930 to its actual realization in 1950, is certainly worth a grand celebration. Today, the Indian Constitution is the longest in the world, consisting of 397 articles and 12 schedules, providing a single citizenship for the whole nation. The national holiday is celebrated with festivities and patriotic fervor across the whole nation.

Republic Day Parade

The grandeur of the Republic Day of India is visible in the grand parade that is held along Rajpath, beginning from Raisina Hill near the Rashtrapati Bhavan (President's Palace) and moving on to Rajpath past India Gate and proceeding to the Red Fort.

The occasion witnesses the presence of the President, the Prime Minister and several other high-ranking officials of the country. The parade starts with the arrival of the President of India, who is escorted by a group of bodyguards on horses. Next, the Prime Minister of India offers wreaths at the Amar Jawan Jyoti at the India Gate in memory of the martyrs of the Indian army. The national flag is unfurled by the President of India, who is also the Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Armed Forces. This is succeeded by the cheerful tune of the National Anthem and a 21-gun salute. Led by three different divisions of the armed forces viz: Navy, Army and Air Force; the Republic Day Parade has all of them displaying their might along the Rajpath, saluting the President. The Armed Forces staff performs motorcycle rides whereas the staff of the Indian Air Force performs flying parade in fighter planes. The rich and colorful culture of India is showcased in the parade of the Republic Day. Traditional as well as cultural performances are given by professionals belonging to different regions. School children in picturesque costumes also participate in the display of different aspects of the glorious history of the country on this big day.

The real heroes of the nation are honored with the bravery awards and medals. National Awards are given to children for selfless sacrifice and bravery.

A row of IAF jets marks the end of the grand celebration, leaving behind a trail of colored smoke. It bids goodbye to the gathered audience by lavishing rose petals on them.

Beating the Retreat Ceremony

The Republic Day celebration ends officially with the Beating the Retreat ceremony, which is held on the 29 January every year. The event symbolizes retreat after a day on the battlefield and features remarkable performances by the Indian Air Force, the India Navy, and the Indian Army. Held at the Raisina Hill, New Delhi, Beating the Retreat Ceremony has its tickets available at the same outlets as the Republic Day Parade.

WHO IS THE CHIEF GUEST ON REPUBLIC DAY OF INDIA 2019

"Matamela Cyril Ramaphosa", the fifth and current President of South Africa will be the Chief Guest on 70th Republic Day of India 2019. Cyril Ramaphosa was invited by the Prime Minister, Narendra Modi during the G20 summit which was held in Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina. # THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

The Constitution of India is the supreme law of India. It lays down the framework defining fundamental political principles, establishes the structure, procedures, powers and duties of government institutions and sets out fundamental rights, directive principles and the duties of citizens. It is the longest written constitution of any sovereign country in the world. The nation is governed by it. B. R. Ambedkar is regarded as its chief architect.

It imparts constitutional supremacy and not parliamentary supremacy, as it is not created by the Parliament but, by a constituent assembly, and adopted by its people, with a declaration in its preamble. Parliament cannot override the constitution.

It was adopted by the Constituent Assembly on 26 November 1949, and came into effect on 26 January 1950. With its adoption, the Union of India became the modern and contemporary Republic of India replacing the Government of India Act, 1935 as the country's fundamental governing document. To ensure constitutional autochthony, the framers of the constitution repealed the prior Acts of the British Parliament via Article 395 of the constitution. India celebrates its coming into force on 26 January each year, as Republic Day.

It declares India a sovereign, socialist, secular, democratic republic, assuring its citizens of justice, equality, and liberty, and endeavors to promote fraternity among them.

Background

The major portion of the Indian subcontinent was under British rule from 1857 to 1947. When the Constitution of India came into force on 26 January 1950, it repealed the Indian Independence Act. India ceased to be a dominion of the British Crown and became a sovereign democratic republic. The date of 26 January was chosen to commemorate the Purna Swaraj declaration of independence of 1930.

Articles 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 60, 324, 366, 367, 379, 380, 388, 391, 392, 393 and 394 of the Constitution came into force on 26 Nov 1949 and the remaining articles on 26 Jan 1950.

Previous legislation used as sources

It is drawn from many sources. Keeping in mind the needs and conditions of India its framers borrowed different features freely from previous legislation viz. Government of India Act 1858, Indian Councils Act 1861, Indian Councils Act 1892, Indian Councils Act 1909, Government of India Act 1919, Government of India Act 1935 and the Indian Independence Act 1947. The last legislation which led to the creation of the two independent nations of India and Pakistan provided for the division of the erstwhile Constituent Assembly into two, with each new assembly having sovereign powers transferred to it, to enable each to draft and enact a new constitution, for the separate states.[citation needed]

Constituent assembly

It was drafted by the Constituent Assembly, which was elected by elected members of the provincial assemblies. The 389 member Constituent Assembly took almost three years (two years, eleven months and eighteen days to be precise) to complete its historic task of drafting the Constitution for independent India, during which, it held eleven sessions over 165 days. Of these, 114 days were spent on the consideration of the draft Constitution. On 29 August 1947, the Constituent Assembly set up a Drafting Committee under the Chairmanship of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar to prepare a draft Constitution for India. While deliberating upon the draft Constitution, the assembly moved, discussed and disposed of as many as 2,473 amendments out of a total of 7,635 tabled. Dr B.R. Ambedkar, Sanjay Phakey, Jawaharlal Nehru, C. Rajagopalachari, Rajendra Prasad, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Kanaiyalal Munshi, Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar, Sandipkumar Patel, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Shyama Prasad Mukherjee, Nalini Ranjan Ghosh, and Balwantrai Mehta were some important figures in the assembly. There were more than 30 members of the scheduled classes. Frank Anthony represented the Anglo-Indian community, and the Parsis were represented by H. P. Modi. The Chairman of the Minorities Committee was Harendra Coomar Mookerjee, a distinguished Christian who represented all Christians other than Anglo-Indians. Ari Bahadur Gurung represented the Gorkha Community. Prominent jurists like Alladi Krishnaswamy Iyer, Benegal Narsing Rau and K. M. Munshi, Ganesh Mavalankar were also members of the Assembly. Sarojini Naidu, Hansa Mehta, Durgabai Deshmukh, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur and Vijayalakshmi Pandit were important women members.

The first temporary 2-day president of the Constituent Assembly was Dr Sachchidananda Sinha. Later, Rajendra Prasad was elected president of the Constituent Assembly. The members of the Constituent Assembly met for the first time on 9 December 1946.

Drafting

On the 14 August 1947 meeting of the Assembly, a proposal for forming various committees was presented. Such committees included a Committee on Fundamental Rights, the Union Powers Committee and Union Constitution Committee. On 29 August 1947, the Drafting Committee was appointed, with Dr B. R. Ambedkar as the Chairman along with six other members assisted by a constitutional advisor. These members were Pandit Govind Ballabh Pant, Kanaiyalal Maneklal Munshi (K M Munshi, Ex- Home Minister, Bombay), Alladi Krishnaswamy Iyer (Ex- Advocate General, Madras State), N Gopalaswami Ayengar (Ex-Prime Minister, J&K and later member of Nehru Cabinet), B L Mitter (Ex-Advocate General, India), Md. Saadullah (Ex- Chief Minister of Assam, Muslim League member) and D P Khaitan (Scion of Khaitan Business family and a renowned lawyer). The constitutional advisor was Sir Benegal Narsing Rau (who became First Indian Judge in International Court of Justice, 1950-54). Later B L Mitter resigned and was replaced by Madhav Rao (Legal Advisor of Maharaja of Vadodara). On D P Khaitan's death, T T Krishnamachari was included in the drafting committee. A draft Constitution was prepared by the committee and submitted to the Assembly on 4 November 1947, which was debated and over 2000 amendments were moved over a period of two years. Finally on 26 November 1949, the process was completed and the Constituent Assembly adopted the Constitution. 284 members signed the document and the process of constitution making was complete. This day is celebrated as National Law Day or Constitution Day.

The assembly met in sessions open to the public, for 166 days, spread over a period of 2 years, 11 months and 18 days before adopting the Constitution, the 308 members of the assembly signed two copies of the document (one each in Hindi and English) on 24 January 1950. The original Constitution of India is hand-written with beautiful calligraphy, each page beautified and decorated by artists from Shantiniketan including Beohar Rammanohar Sinha and Nandalal Bose. The illustrations on the cover and pages represent styles from the different civilisations of the subcontinent, ranging from the prehistoric Mohenjodaro civilisation, in the Indus Valley, to the present. The calligraphy in the book was done by Prem Behari Narain Raizada. It was published in Dehra Dun, and photolithographed at the offices of Survey of India. The entire exercise to produce the original took nearly five years. Two days later, on 26 January 1950, the Constitution of India became the law of all the States and territories of India. Rs.1,00,00,000 was official estimate of expenditure on constituent assembly. It has undergone many amendments since its enactment.

The original 1950 Constitution of India is preserved in helium cases in the Parliament house, New Delhi. There are two original versions of this - one in Hindi and the other in English. The original constitution can be viewed here.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS THAT CHANGED COURSE OF INDIA

The 2019 Republic Day marks 70 years of the great Indian Constitution. The Constitution of India is the principal document that formulates the rights, duties and powers of citizens, governments and its officials. The constitution came into force on 26 January 1950, took nearly three years to complete, and is regarded to be the world's most extensive Constitution.

However, as our society and its needs are ever-evolving, if the constitution does not keep pace, it will become redundant or lead to break down of law and order.

So, as an advancing and subsisting document, numerous amendments have been made to it till 2016. Amendments to the Constitution require a special majority of 'two-third' members present and voting to be passed in Parliament.

Here are some of the most significant amendments:

Abolition of states according to classes and introduction of Union Territories and reorganisation of states by language (1956):

This was one of the first significant reforms of the boundaries of Indian states and territories, organising them by the language spoken in those areas. This systematically arranged the states and lowered the complexity of state boundaries. Apart from this, it also abolished the classification of states by progress and per-capita income of the states.

The mini-constitution (42nd amendment) inserted Socialism and Secularism in the preamble, a provision on fundamental (1976):

Secularism and socialism were inserted to restore the faith of the nation that minorities would be safe and not be exploited by the rich strata. Also, the rich would not be allowed to dominate the country's economy. The main reason to add socialism was to promote social as well as economic equality in the country. Similarly, the main reason to add secularism was to imply that there was no official state religion of the country.

Right to Property deleted from the list of fundamental rights (1978):

The fundamental right to property in India was removed to permit the reorganisation of land and to facilitate land acquisition for developmental projects. This was carried out by the Indian government at that time since it was not affluent enough to pay people whatever they demanded their land.

Lawmakers may be disqualified on the grounds of defection (Law of Defection) (1985):

This was quite a controversial amendment in itself since it was felt that this law would invade on the right of free speech of lawmakers. Under the amendment, a Member of Parliament or state legislature was considered to have defected if they either resigned from their party or violated the directions of the party leadership on a vote. That is, they may not vote on any issue in violation to the party's decision. Independent members would be disqualified if they joined a political party. Nominated members who were not members of a party could choose to join a party within six months; after that period, they were treated as a party member or independent member.

Voting age reduced from 21 to 18 (1989):

The then Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi explained it as an expression of the government's full faith in the youth of the country. The youth are aware and informed and thus, lowering of the voting age would provide an opportunity to the unrepresented youth of the nation to vent out their feelings and motivate them to become a part of the political process eventually.

Free and compulsory education to children between 6 to 14 years (2002):

One of the most important amendments, the government directed private schools to take 25% of their class strength from economically weaker or disadvantaged groups of society through a random selection process with the help of the government funding. This initiative was taken to try and provide elementary education to all. Moreover, the local and state governments were made to ensure its proper implementation.

Allowed the government to pass laws relating to reservations to socially, economically backward classes, scheduled castes and scheduled tribes in public and private higher educational institutions (2014):

Scheduled castes and scheduled tribes have been the most neglected and exploited people in India. The curse of untouchability has always been a dark spot on Indian civilisation and culture. Despite the constitutional declaration of its abolition under Article 17, it was still quite prevalent in many subtle and not so subtle ways. Therefore, for the very integrity, survival and the nation's unity the amendment to pass laws relating to such reservations were quite a need of the hour.

Introduction of the Goods and Services Tax

(GST), to present the idea of One Nation, One Tax (2016):

The most recent important amendment came with the implementation of the GST, where consumers would not be subjected to double/ multiple taxations. All taxes that are imposed while purchasing goods will include both the central

WHAT OUR LEADERS SAID...

As we are celebrating India's 70th Republic Day, let us have a look at some of the memorable quotes by our Prime Ministers - From Nehru to Modi.

JAWAHARLAL NEHRU (1947-64): "Religion is not familiar ground for me, and as I have grown older, I have drifted away from it. I have something else in its place, something older than just intellect and reason, which gives me strength and hope. Apart from this indefinable and indefinite urge, I have grown entirely to rely on the workings of the mind."

GULZARILAL NANDA (1964; 1ST TIME, 1966 SECOND TIME): "Corruption is a serious hindrance to the development of the socialist pattern... When there is scope for corruption there cannot be equal opportunity... Some attention has to be paid to the well-being of women, landless laborers, and tribals among others - and equality of opportunity to all children."

LAL BAHADUR SHASTRI (1964-66): "There comes a time in the life of every nation when it stands at the cross-roads of history and must choose which way to go. But for us there need be no difficulty or hesitation, no looking to right or left."

INDIRA GANDHI (1966-77; 1ST TIME, 1980-84; 2ND TIME): "We admired Dr. King. We felt his loss as our own. The tragedy rekindled memories of the great martyrs of all time who gave their lives so that men might live and grow. We thought of the great men in your own country who fell to the assassin's bullet and of Mahatma Gandhi's martyrdom. Such events remain as wounds in the human consciousness."

MORARJI DESAI (1977-79): "One should act in life according to truth and one's faith" Society at present suffers far more from waste of money than from want of it. There is dignity in every attempt to economise. It indicates self-denial and imparts strength of character."

CHARAN SINGH (1979-80): "Our poverty has to be eliminated and the basic necessities of life made available to every single citizen. Political leadership of the country must remember that nothing mocks our values and our dreams more than the desperate struggle of our people for existence; nothing could therefore be more poignant than the look of despair in the eyes of a starving child."

RAJIV GANDHI (1984-89): "India is an old country, but a young nation; and like the young everywhere we are impatient. I am young, and I too have a dream. I dream of an India strong, independent and self-reliant and in the front rank of the nations of the world in the service of mankind."

V.P. SINGH (1989-90): "The Dalits are a powerful secular force. Then, the backward forces can provide an effective bulwark along with the minorities against the forces of communism. P.V. NARASIMHA RAO (1991-96): "When I don't make a decision, it's not that I don't think about it. I think about it and make a decision not to make a decision."

ATAL BIHARI VAJPAYEE (1996; 1ST TIME, 1998-2004 SECOND TIME): "We, the Indians, as Guru of the Nations: yes, I believe in that. We can be or once more become- the hope of mankind. But that requires efforts and courage to be ourselves culturally."

INDER K. GUJRAL (1997-98): "With the neighbors like Nepal, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Maldives and Sri Lanka, India does not ask for reciprocity but gives all that it can in good faith and trust."

MANMOHAN SINGH (2004-14): "We speak about cooperation but seem hesitant to commit ourselves to a global offensive to root out terrorism, with the pooling of resources, exchange of information, sharing of intelligence, and the unambiguous unity of purpose required. This must change."

NARENDRA MODI (2014-TO DATE): "Religion to me is devotion to work and devotedly working is being religious."

The Republic of India is considered one of the emerging superpowers of the world. This potential is attributed to several indicators, the primary ones being its demographic trends and a rapidly expanding economy and by GDP India became world's fastest growing economy in 2018 with 8.4% GDP rate. The country must overcome many economic, social, and political problems before it can be considered a superpower. It is also not yet as influential on the international stage when compared to the United States or the former Soviet Union.

India to be global growth leader in 2019-20: IMF

The International Monetary Fund's (IMF) World Economic Outlook Update released by chief economist Gita Gopinath on Monday said that India's economy is expected to grow by 7.5 per cent in the 2019-20 fiscal year, keeping an upward trajectory as the rest of the world slumps. India will continue to be the world's fastest growing major economy, the report said. The IMF's flagship report said that India's growth was estimated to be 7.3 per cent for the current fiscal year and forecast to rise to 7.7 per cent in 2020-21.

"India's economy is poised to pick up in 2019, benefiting from lower oil prices and a slower pace of monetary tightening than previously expected, as inflation pressures ease," the report said.

The World Bank's projections published earlier this month for India's growth in the current and next fiscal years match those of the IMF but is lower at 7.5 per cent for 2020-21.

Science and Technology Development in India

India ranks third among the most attractive investment destinations for technology transactions in the world. Modern India has had a strong focus on science and technology, realising that it is a key element of economic growth. India is among the topmost countries in the world in the field of scientific research, positioned as one of the top five nations in the field of space exploration. The country has regularly undertaken space missions, including missions to the moon and the famed Polar Satellite Launch Vehicle (PSLV).

India is likely to take a leading role in launching satellites for the SAARC nations, generating revenue by offering its space facilities for use to other countries.

India is aggressively working towards establishing itself as a leader in industrialisation and technological development. Significant developments in the nuclear energy sector are likely as India looks to expand its nuclear capacity. Moreover, nanotechnology is expected to transform the Indian pharmaceutical industry. The agriculture sector is also likely to undergo a major revamp, with the government investing heavily for the technology-driven Green Revolution. Government of India, through the Science, Technology and Innovation (STI) Policy-2013, among other things, aspires to position India among the world's top five scientific powers. Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) will launch its first Indian human mission by 2022.

Mass transit system

India is in the process of developing modern mass rapid transit systems to replace its existing system which is seen as inadequate to cater to present and future urban requirements. A modern metro rail system is already in place in the cities of Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, Bangalore, Kolkata, Hyderabad, Kochi, Gurgaon, Jaipur and Lucknow. Work is in progress or would be commencing shortly for developing similar mass transit system in cities of Noida, Nagpur, Indore, Kanpur and Ahmedabad. Indore is leading the track by implementing world class GPS enabled, low floor buses in a Rapid Transport System. With growth in economy and technology, India is welcoming modernisation. The Indian rail network traverses the length and breadth of the country, covering a total length of 63,140 km (39,200 miles). It is one of the largest and busiest rail networks in the world, transporting over 9 billion passengers and over 350 million tonnes of freight annually. Its operations covers twenty-seven states and three Union territories and also links the neighbouring countries of Nepal, Bangladesh and Pakistan. However, other public transport systems, such as buses are often not up to the standards followed in developed countries. India is heading towards implementation of high-speed rail in the country.

INDIA AS AN EMERGING SUPERPOWER

Tourism and Hospitality

India is a large market for travel and tourism. It offers a diverse portfolio of niche tourism products - cruises, adventure, medical, wellness, sports, MICE, eco-tourism, film, rural and religious tourism. India has been recognized as a destination for spiritual tourism for domestic and international tourists. Total contribution by travel and tourism sector to India's GDP is expected to increase from Rs 15.24 trillion (US$ 234.03 billion) in 2017 to Rs 32.05 trillion (US$ 492.21 billion) in 2028. India was ranked 7th among 184 countries in terms of travel & tourism's total contribution to GDP in 2017. Travel and tourism is the third largest foreign exchange earner for India. During January-November 2018, FEEs from tourism increased 6.40 per cent year-on-year to US$ 25.84 billion. Foreign Tourist Arrivals (FTAs) increased by 5.60 per cent year-on-year to 9.37 million in the same period. Foreign tourist arrivals for medical purpose increased from 427,014 in 2016 to 495,056 in 2017(P). During January-November 2018, arrivals through e-tourist visa increased 41.50 per cent year-on-year to 2.06 million.

Healthcare Industry

India is a land full of opportunities for players in the medical devices industry. India's healthcare industry is one of the fastest growing sectors and it is expected to reach $280 billion by 2020. The country has also become one of the leading destinations for high-end diagnostic services with tremendous capital investment for advanced diagnostic facilities, thus catering to a greater proportion of population. Besides, Indian medical service consumers have become more conscious towards their healthcare upkeep.

Indian healthcare sector is much diversified and is full of opportunities in every segment which includes providers, payers and medical technology. With the increase in the competition, businesses are looking to explore for the latest dynamics and trends which will have positive impact on their business. The hospital industry in India is forecasted to increase to Rs 8.6 trillion (US$ 132.84 billion) by FY22 from Rs 4 trillion (US$ 61.79 billion) in FY17 at a CAGR of 16-17 per cent.

India's competitive advantage also lies in the increased success rate of Indian companies in getting Abbreviated New Drug Application (ANDA) approvals. India also offers vast opportunities in R&D as well as medical tourism. To sum up, there are vast opportunities for investment in healthcare infrastructure in both urban and rural India.

Agriculture

Agriculture is the primary source of livelihood for about 58 per cent of India's population. Gross Value Added by agriculture, forestry and fishing is estimated at Rs 17.67 trillion (US$ 274.23 billion) in FY18.

The Indian food industry is poised for huge growth, increasing its contribution to world food trade every year due to its immense potential for value addition, particularly within the food processing industry. The Indian food and grocery market is the world's sixth largest, with retail contributing 70 per cent of the sales. The Indian food processing industry accounts for 32 per cent of the country's total food market, one of the largest industries in India and is ranked fifth in terms of production, consumption, export and expected growth. It contributes around 8.80 and 8.39 per cent of Gross Value Added (GVA) in Manufacturing and Agriculture respectively, 13 per cent of India's exports and six per cent of total industrial investment.

India is expected to achieve the ambitious goal of doubling farm income by 2022. The agriculture sector in India is expected to generate better momentum in the next few years due to increased investments in agricultural infrastructure such as irrigation facilities, warehousing and cold storage. Furthermore, the growing use of genetically modified crops will likely improve the yield for Indian farmers. India is expected to be self-sufficient in pulses in the coming few years due to concerted efforts of scientists to get early-maturing varieties of pulses and the increase in minimum support price.

The government of India targets to increase the average income of a farmer household at current prices to Rs 219,724 (US$ 3,420.21) by 2022-23 from Rs 96,703 (US$ 1,505.27) in 2015-16.

Aviation Industry

The civil aviation industry in India has emerged as one of the fastest growing industries in the country during the last three years. India is currently considered the third largest domestic civil aviation market in the world. India has become the third largest domestic aviation market in the world and is expected to overtake UK to become the third largest air passenger market by 2024.

India's aviation industry is largely untapped with huge growth opportunities, considering that air transport is still expensive for majority of the country's population, of which nearly 40 per cent is the upwardly mobile middle class.

The industry stakeholders should engage and collaborate with policy makers to implement efficient and rational decisions that would boost India's civil aviation industry. With the right policies and relentless focus on quality, cost and passenger interest, India would be well placed to achieve its vision of becoming the third-largest aviation market by 2025.

Education & Training

India holds an important place in the global education industry. India has one of the largest networks of higher education institutions in the world. However, there is still a lot of potential for further development in the education system.

Moreover, the aim of the government to raise its current gross enrolment ratio to 30 per cent by 2020 will also boost the growth of the distance education in India.

In 2030, it is estimated that India's higher education will:

- Adopt transformative and innovative approaches in Higher education.
- Have an augmented Gross Enrolment Ratio (GER) of 50 per cent
- Reduce state-wise, gender based and social disparity in GER to 5 per cent.
- Emerge as a single largest provider of global talent, with one in four graduates in the world being a product of the Indian higher education system.
- Be among the top five countries in the world in terms of research output with an annual R&D spent of US$ 140 billion.
- Have more than 20 universities among the global top 200.
- Various government initiatives are being adopted to boost the growth of distance education market, besides focusing on new education techniques, such as E-learning and M-learning.

Education sector has seen a host of reforms and improved financial outlays in recent years that could possibly transform the country into a knowledge haven. With human resource increasingly gaining significance in the overall development of the country, development of education infrastructure is expected to remain the key focus in the current decade. In this scenario, infrastructure investment in the education sector is likely to see a considerable increase in the current decade.

Moreover, availability of English speaking tech-educated talent, democratic governance and a strong legal and intellectual property protection framework are enablers for world class product development, as per Mr Amit Phadnis, President-Engineering and Site Leader for Cisco (India).

The Government of India has taken several steps including opening of IIT's and IIM's in new locations as well as allocating educational grants for research scholars in most government institutions. Furthermore, with online modes of education being used by several educational organisations, the higher education sector in India is set for some major changes and developments in the years to come.

Power Sector

Power is one of the most critical components of infrastructure crucial for the economic growth and welfare of nations. The existence and development of adequate infrastructure is essential for sustained growth of the Indian economy.

India's power sector is one of the most diversified in the world. Sources of power generation range from conventional sources such as coal, lignite, natural gas, oil, hydro and nuclear power to viable non-conventional sources such as wind, solar, and agricultural and domestic waste. Electricity demand in the country has increased rapidly and is expected to rise further in the years to come. In order to meet the increasing demand for electricity in the country, massive addition to the installed generating capacity is required.

In May 2018, India ranked 4th in the Asia Pacific region out of 25 nations on an index that measures their overall power.

India's military might

The Indian Armed Forces are the military forces of the Republic of India. It consists of three professional uniformed services: the Indian Army, Indian Navy, and Indian Air Force. Additionally, the Indian Armed Forces are supported by the Indian Coast Guard and paramilitary organisations (Assam Rifles, and Special Frontier Force) and various inter-service commands and institutions such as the Strategic Forces Command, the Andaman and Nicobar Command and the Integrated Defence Staff.

The President of India is the Supreme Commander of the Indian Armed Forces. The Indian Armed Forces are under the management of the Ministry of Defence (MoD) of the Government of India. With strength of over 1.4 million active personnel, it is the world's 2nd largest military force and has the world's largest volunteer army. It is important to note that the Central Armed Police Forces, which are commonly and incorrectly referred to as 'Paramilitary Forces', are headed by officers from the Indian Police Service and are under the control of the Ministry of Home Affairs, not the Ministry of Defence.

“I want Eros to be Preeminent in the US”: Prem Parameswaran

is an institution in himself. A financial wizard, Prem achieved phenomenal success as investment banker. In his 23 -year career in Investment Banking, Prem became one of the top Media and Telecom bankers on Wall Street. He advised clients and many Fortune 10 companies on mergers and acquisitions, as well as both public and private equity and debt financings.

In 2015, after a long and successful career as an investment banker in the Global Media and Telecom sector Prem Parameswaran joined Eros as the Group Chief Financial Officer (CFO) and President of Eros International's North America Operations. A new feather was added to his crown when on December 20, 2018 Eros announced that Prem has been appointed to the Company's Board of Directors.

Established in 1977, Eros is a respected global brand name in the Indian cinema world, which focuses on distributing films and other content through various mediums. Its relatively new OTT (Over-the-Top Service) platform, Eros Now, has over 128 million registered users globally with over 13 million monthly subscribers as of September 30, 2018. People term Eros Now as the "Netflix" of India, which owns rights for about 11,000 films from Bollywood and regional languages of India spanning several decades. No other company in the world has such a rich and vast Indian content to offer to its viewers globally.

Obviously, Mr. Parameswaran is a subject of interest for the media and anybody attempting to analyze what contributes to success of a person or an institution. The Indian Panorama Chief Editor Prof. Indrajit S Saluja caught up with Mr. Parameswaran two days before the end of 2018 to interview him at his residence in Purchase, New York.

Here are excerpts from the interview.

TIP: I am told you were born in USA.

Yes, I was born on October 4th, 1968 in New York. My parents, who were both immigrants who came to US as students in pursuit of the American dream, were the first Indian family to move to Scarsdale in 1970. There were no other Indians in Scarsdale at this time. Scarsdale was predominantly a Jewish Community at that time. Today, Scarsdale has approximately 20% Asians and is one of the most affluent areas in all of New York. It also has one of the best school systems in the country and that is sole reason why my dad wanted the family to move to Scarsdale to give me the best education.

TIP: And you went to which College and University?

First, I went to Scarsdale public school system and graduated from Scarsdale High School. Then I went to Columbia University and then I went to also Columbia Business School. So I have a BA from Columbia University and MBA Finance Honors from Columbia Business School.

TIP: Do you also have a Ph.D.?

No, I don't. I thought about it and even now I think about it, to perhaps do a Ph.D. in Finance after my business career, but you know family and work come first. So, I haven't thought about it recently, but as you grow older one thinks perhaps why not. I enjoy teaching just like when I was working, I would like to go back to Columbia Business School and sometimes teach a case study in the one of the Advanced Corporate Finance classes about a deal or a transaction and how it works and how you value companies. So it is always nice to be able to teach business school students how to apply theory to practice because in Finance there is a lot of theory but in practice you have to think about other variables in valuations. For example, you see valuations of companies like Amazon or Facebook, Netflix or even us at different value levels and different multiples and as a result you have to apply different kind of theories whether it is a discounted cash analysis or an applied public value multiple analysis or a comparable transaction analysis and any of these methods could yield different results. Teaching how to apply these valuation methods with respect to both public and private companies is an art not a science.

TIP: So is it because of your deep understanding of finance and the practices involved that the companies trusted you with taking your advice on mergers and acquisitions which you specialized in?

After college and business school, I worked in Investment banking. I started my career in 1991 with Salomon Brothers which was one of the pre-eminent Wall Street Investment banking firms and from there I went to the prestigious Goldman Sachs and I spent many years with them as a Vice President; and from Goldman Sachs to Deutsche Bank in 2003 where I eventually became a Managing Director and Head of Americas for media, telecom investment banking. I worked on mergers and acquisitions as well as public and private financings for large multinational companies.

TIP: I think for that you were given an award also?

Yes, there were some awards over time. It is always nice to receive something for your accomplishments. There was Deal of the Year, Businessman of the Year, there was a whole bunch of different and nice awards and that was from advising different clients but eventually I finished my investment banking career at Jefferies where I was the Global Head of Media, Telecom investment banking. After an investment banking career of over 23 years of my career, I had executed over 300 transactions and those transactions for some of the world's best companies including AT&T, Comcast, T-Mobile, Reliance, The Boston Red Sox,

"We are beating Netflix in India. We spent more money on content in India than Netflix does in India. And we have already 13 million monthly paying subscribers as of Sep 30. I don't believe Netflix even has 1 million in India today. So that shows we are pre-eminent."

Windstream, Level 3 and Eros International to name a few. In fact the company now that I work for, Eros International is a company that I helped take public in November 2013. We also did a follow on equity offering for that company. So, over the course of a 23-year career you can do a lot of deals, I really enjoyed doing those deals, I enjoyed working with very talented smart people who would challenge you every day. The people we hire whether it was Salomon or a Goldman or a Deutsche are the top of the top -you have to be a top student, top GMAT, top SAT and then once you are working you are working 80 to 100 hours a week. These people are really committed, and you have to enjoy what you are doing. If you are not enjoying what you are doing , working 80 to 100 hours of a week is tedious and you are not going to do it well. I loved it and especially the fast pace nature of the business. I worked very hard and that's how you succeed, and I think I really have enjoyed a great career in investment banking and now I am enjoying the best career as a CFO.

TIP: By the way, you said hard work, but having a vision to create something or to take a company to a higher level that is a different thing. You may be very hard working but if you have lack of vision you may not be able to achieve as much as you want to. So, you have a vision, what kind of a vision you had when you moved over the present company you are working for?

Eros International is the preeminent Bollywood content, Indian content company, in the world. We have largest library of films from a theatrical perspective, we have the largest Indian OTT platform-Eros Now, OTT is Over The Top, which is similar to Netflix. We are bigger actually than the Netflix in terms of number of Indian Films and Original Series. So, we are like the Netflix of India except bigger and we are publicly listed on the New York Stock Exchange ticker symbol EROS. I joined the company 2015, Kishore Lulla , the chairman of the company who I originally worked with on listing Eros on the NYSE came to me in December of 2014 regarding joining Eros and building a global digital company. We were at the Montage Hotel at the Beverly Hills and we were both there doing business. We sat down and literally on a napkin he said this is what I want to do, and I want this digital piece, EROS NOW our

OTT platform to be a

$10 billion dollar

marketcapitalization

company. Here's where the growth is going to come from. Here's where the subscribers

will come from as there are over a billion people in India, billion people on cellphones. I said, can we start with $1 billion, so we joked around but what was interesting was the vision was there, the vision to build a preeminent digital platform was there and all of the groundwork and infrastructure was already laid down, so I thought this was a huge opportunity and he came to me and said he wants somebody with M& A experience and public capital market experience to help drive the company with him and the current management team. I got excited, after 23 years of banking you usually get excited about deals, this was the first time I got excited about the company and I have been approached before to join other public companies but none of them really appealed to me. This appealed to me cause this you have the opportunity to build the next Netflix, the next Facebook, the next

Amazon right now and getting in on the ground floor with the infrastructure in place. Two, I get to work with my Indian heritage in Bollywood.

So, it was nice to deal with all of the aspects of films. You know in India there are three things, there is religion, there is Cricket and there is Bollywood may be not in that order. You know it was such a big opportunity and I thought this is perfect .

TIP: So 2015 to 2018, what has been the growth trajectory?

The growth trajectory has been tremendous in the sense that we went from a 3000 film library to an 11,000 film library for Eros Now. From basically the time I joined we had less than 10 million registered users and today we have 128 million registered users and over 13 million monthly paying subscribers. Our revenue

"...you are looking at Indians now who have conquered Wall Street, you see Indian CEOs on Wall Street. There are Indian CEOs at some of the top companies in the world like Google, Microsoft, Pepsi, Mastercard and Adobe and they all exemplify the strength of Indians. In addition, most people are not threatened by Indians, we are smart, but we are good people with a lot of intellectual horsepower."

growth on the top line is roughly 15 % and our EBITDA margins are over 30 %, last quarter we did 39.2% EBITDA margins earnings before interest and taxes depreciation and amortization. Tremendous growth continues as we have premium content on Eros Now including original series like Side Hero and Smoke that have been highly rated by IMDB.

TIP: So, what would be the net worth of the company now?

Our market cap is roughly around on an enterprise value of about $900 million and a market capitalization of about $750 million today. Actually, it fluctuates with the market. If you asked me two weeks ago, we were closer to a billion. We had a little bit of a global sell off in the market in December. So, that happens; that's ok as we believe in the long term growth of our business and our stock price will be a by product of our success.

TIP: But then it will bounce back, too?

I am not worried about the small blips in the stock market here and there. Right now our stock price is 9.50, we believe this could be $100 stock if we continue to operate and execute on our business strategy with premium content.

TIP: So, the flop doesn't bother you?

No, given our business fundamentals are strong, I believe we will achieve new heights.

TIP: So, ultimately it does affect your net worth or what would you call it your net capital or whatever you may like to call it?

Yes, ofcourse our market cap today as I told you is roughly just over $750 million and yes, the stock price goes up and down , but we have close to $100 million cash on our balance sheet,we are fully financed, andpoised for growth. We have a very conservative balance sheet as well. And it's part of being a CFO is making sure that one: our capital structure is correct and poised for a growth and two: that we have cash on our balance sheet to sustain the growth.

TIP: And from here as you said about the growth until now what are your plans, where do you go from here?

Sure, sowe are in the process of doing 40 to 50 films each year as well as over 100 new Originals on Eros Now. This similar to what Netflix does except we have the Studio business as well so more like a combination of Warner and Netflix equals Eros. We also just launched Eros Now Quickie which is short form content that is great for the millennials. Quicke premiered First Dates Gone Wrong this month which was well viewed because this content transcends globally. We also released Smoke which is a drama based on the underworld in Goa , drugs, violence, very similar to Narcose but I think I am a little biased and I think Smoke is better and its in HINGLISH (Hindi & English) with subtitles. So anybody can view it, you don't have to know the language of Hindi. Anyone around the world can view it. You can just download our app from EROS NOW.COM.

TIP: So, this is one way where you want to head on at the moment but is there anything revolutionary, exceptional and doesn't exist anywhere else, but you can think of introducing to promote your business?

Yeah what's interesting about us is that we have been on the cutting edge of Bollywood cinema and Indian content since 1977. The company was formed in 1977 in an International distribution house by Arjan Lulla, God Rest his Soul , he just passed away. Kishore Lulla, the chairman , his son has built it up to make it a global phenomenon, a global company. Again, similar to Netflix except better from an Indian content perspective there is no one that even comes close. So much so that Reliance industries, Mukesh Ambani's company bought a 5% stake in our company at $15 a share this past February 2018. Ironically our stock is at $9.50 but it is good that the 19th richest man in the world bought 5 % stake in our company at $15 a share. It shows you that he believes in the growth potential of our company. He is a smart businessman and knows the principals of value investing.

TIP: Did Ambanis have anything to do with you probably when they bought some theatres here?

No, that was Anil Ambani, his brother not Mukesh. Anil had invested in DreamWorks and unfortunately, I don't think that turned out well for him because I think he bought it at the top. Ours is a different story because Mukesh Ambani is populating his telecom company and his data offering with content and he knows that we can be one of the preeminent content providers not only in India but globally .

TIP: What challenges do you face from maybe your competitors or from the other advancing technology?

Netflix has gone into India. Amazon has gone into India. Then you have others like Voot and Hotstar but having said that we look at ourselves in a different light because the EROS brand is so strong in India and globally amongst the Indians. We have the deepest and the richest library than any of our competitors. Of the last 10 years and the last 110 highest box office grossing films, over 36 of them are ours which I think is a strong testament to our preeminent content. EROS NOW or OTT App which is being driven by Rishika Lulla is phenomenal. We are beating Netflix in India. We spent more money on content in India than Netflix does in India. And we have already 13 million monthly paying subscribers as of Sep 30. I don't believe Netflix even has 1 million in India today. So that shows we are pre-eminent.

BEING FAMOUS DOESN'T MAKE AN ACTOR A STAR: KAJOL

Kajol, one of the most sought after names of Hindi film industry, believes it has become easier to get famous, but being a star is not a cakewalk even today.

"The words star and fame cannot be put together. There are lot of people who are famous today but there are a very few stars. So, it is not synonymous anymore today which used to be there earlier," Kajol told PTI. The actor, who has been active in films for over 25 years, said she stayed relevant as she decided to grow with time both personally and professionally.

"I believe I am relevant today. I believe my personality has a lot to do with it. My personality has grown on screen and off screen with age. I am way smarter, cooler than what I was at the age 16. I am more beautiful. I think I am bound to be relevant in a lot of ways," she said.

Kajol made her acting debut in 1992 with Rahul Rawail's Bekhudi and went on to deliver hits like Baazigar, Yeh Dillagi, Karan Arjun, Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge, Gupt, Kuch Kuch Hota Hai, My Name is Khan, Fanaa among others.

PEOPLE ARE WAITING FOR ME TO FAIL, SAYS KANGANA

Kangana established herself by playing characters dealing with emotional turmoil in her earlier films like "Gangster", "Woh Lamhe" and "Fashion", before gaining stardom with "Queen" and subsequently headlining powerful women-oriented movies.

Though she delivered hits and cemented her position, Kangana's crashing of recent projects "Simran" and "Rangoon" were more talked about.

"I do feel there are people waiting for me to fail," Kangana told PTI. "That there are people who are waiting to prove to themselves that she's not a real deal, to make themselves feel better. My failure is important to them," she added.

The 31-year-old actor, known to speak her mind, said while a certain section will look at her in a particular light but her world view is extremely positive and she wouldn't change that. "Even though I can realise or feel, I can never be like them or feel through them. I understand their cynicism but I can never be them. Personally, I've never waited for anyone to fail. That's why I think I could do what I did in my life. That inherent positivity that I have in me. I praise everyone regardless of who they are or what they think of me is actually something I live by. I'm not a double-faced person. What others feel I'm not concerned about that," she added.

Kangana is currently gearing up for her ambitious epic-drama "Manikarnika: The Queen of Jhansi". The actor underwent a rigorous and "exhaustive" physical and emotional exercise to tap into the character of Rani Lakshimbai, one of the key leaders in the Indian Rebellion of 1857.

Things changed, however, when she had to also turn director after the original helmer, Krish, was not available to re-shoot a chunk of the project. Kangana said she was aware when the news dropped that she will now helm the project, there was widespread scepticism around her.

"When the studio is investing money, I must've shown them some calibre because nobody will put money on anyone. If the entire team, the writers who are India's best are ready to work with me, it's beyond me why people get so touchy," she said.

Kangana added that most of it could be "deep-rooted sexism" which invited the amount of doubt on whether she could direct the film. "I'm just a new director on the block, what's the big deal? I see there is a lot of sexism involved in this- a woman, doing an epic action film and directing it. That's something even Hollywood was struggling with.

The "Tanu Weds Manu" star is currently "neck deep" in the final stage of the film from readying the print for international delivery to fixing last-minute sound hiccups.

Photographers tease Janhvi Kapoor by calling her Sara Ali Khan

Janhvi was also trolled recently for an outfit that she wore for the shoot of a popular magazine

Actor Janhvi Kapoor was caught in an awkward moment when photographers decided to pull her leg and call her 'Sara Ji' as she stepped out of her trailer. When Janhvi hears it, she says, "Jaan booch ke kar rahe hai (He is doing it intentionally)." She says it with a smile on her face, understanding that the photographers were trying to tease her.

Janhvi was also trolled recently for an outfit that she wore for the shoot of a popular magazine. Instagram page Diet Sabya called out the actor's stylist and the designer for plagiarising Balmain's design. She was also trolled for her wig, the dress and also for nepotism. Some even gave a shoutout to Rhea Kapoor and Sonam Kapoor, who had posted a long note on why one of the Anamika Khanna designs that Diet Sabya had featured in their Instagram site was not a copy.

On the work front, Janhvi will be seen in the biopic of Indian Air Force officer Gunjan Saxena, who was the first female Indian pilot. A picture of Janhvi dressed in IAF uniform was leaked on the social media. Janhvi will also be seen in Karan Johar's big-budget directorial Takht, which will also star Ranveer Singh, Alia Bhatt, Kareena Kapoor Khan, Vicky Kaushal, Bhumi Pednekar and others.

Recently speaking of her late mother, actor Sridevi, Janhvi had said, "I think, I was still in that state of shock, to be very honest. I think I am still in shock. None of it has been processed. Like, I have no memory of three or four months. You know at the end of the day, we have the same blood in us. I don't remember anything of those four months but I do remember that one day when we were sitting in Harsh (Harshvardhan Kapoor, Anil Kapoor's son and Janhvi's cousin) bhaiya's room and Arjun bhaiya and Anshula didi came in, I think that was the one day when I felt like, 'Ok maybe we might be okay.'

NINA DOBREV ALMOST KILLED BY LION DURING SAFARI

Actress Nina Dobrev almost became a lion's meal during her trip to South Africa.

The Vampire Diaries' star was thrilled to see big cats in the wild safari but getting up close to one lion gave the actress and her friends a bit of a scare.

"I've always wanted to go to South Africa. It was fun and the safari part of it was the best part. There were elephants drinking out of our pool, we saw leopards, and at one point a lion actually charged at us!" Dobrev told.

But the lion was no match for her guide, who came to her rescue.

"The lion opened its mouth and tried to attack us, and our guide was like a real-life Indiana Jones and roared back at him and scared the lion off (That is) the closest I've been to death so far in my life, and I've done some crazy s**t," she added.

ANGELINA JOLIE FINDS LOVE IN TOM HIDDLESTON

One year ago today, a tabloid falsely claimed Angelina Jolie was dating Tom Hiddleston after being introduced to the actor by Chris Hemsworth. Gossip Cop debunked the phony romance rumors as soon as they emerged. Time has proven the narrative to be completely untrue.

On January 23, 2018, Woman's Day New Zealand wrongly reported Jolie and Hiddleston had been set up on a date by Hemsworth, who sat next to the actress at that year's Golden Globes. According to the magazine, Jolie opened up about her love life to the Australian actor while they were hanging out at the ceremony. The actress supposedly told Hemsworth "guys were scared of asking her out" following her divorce from Brad Pitt, but the actor mentioned that his Thor co-star Hiddleston "always had the hots for her, and Ange said she liked him too."

From there, the magazine's anonymous and untraceable "source" claimed Hemsworth gave Hiddleston's contact information to Jolie, which resulted in the two "texting and calling each other" nonstop. The magazine's alleged insider further maintained the actress was "longing to find love again," which put Hiddleston "in the right place at the right time."

Around the same time the tabloid published its story last year, People magazine reported Jolie was "single and not interested in dating." The reputable celebrity news outlet further noted the actress wasn't planning on dating "for a very long time" as she was instead "focused on her children and their needs." Naturally, we doubted the veracity of the Woman's Day story, and those doubts were confirmed after checking in with sources close to both Jolie and Hiddleston, who dismissed the entire report as fiction.

Not only did the actress never embark on a romance with Hiddleston, but two months later, E! News once again confirmed that Jolie is "not dating" and is "very focused on her kids and doesn't have a lot going on outside of that." As of January 2019, the actress has continued putting her love life on the back burner for the sake of her children.

OSCAR NOMINATIONS 2019

Black Panther creates history, becomes first superhero film to get best picture nod

Black Panther, the Marvel blockbuster fronted by virtually an all-black cast, has created history by becoming the first superhero film to get the Best Picture nomination at the Oscars. The film, directed by Ryan Coogler and featuring Chadwick Boseman in the titular role, received total seven nominations for the 91st Academy Awards.

Apart from the Best Picture category, the Marvel project has received nods for original song, original score, sound mixing, sound editing, costume design and production design. In the Best Picture category, the film is pitted against The Favourite, Vice, Roma, Green Book, A Star Is Born, BlacKkKlansman and Bohemian Rhapsody.

Black Panther, set in a fictional African country of Wakanda, became a massive hit earning USD 1.3 billion worldwide. The film, featuring Michael B Jordan, Lupita Nyong'o, Forrest Whitaker, Angela Bassett and Letitia Wright among others, received praise from both the critics and the audiences for its authentic portrayal of African culture.

The film has had a spectacular awards season, as it received nods at the Critics' Choice Awards, SAG, BAFTAs and a history-making Golden Globe nomination. In the past, superhero films have been nominated and have also won a few Academy Awards, but mainly in the technical categories. Last year, James Mangold and Michael Green had a break through as they received the Best Adapted Screenplay nomination for Hugh Jackman's "Logan".

Prior to that, Heath Ledger won a posthumous Oscar for Best Supporting Actor in 2009 for his portrayal of one of the most notorious DC villains, the Joker, in Christopher Nolan's The Dark Knight. Nolan's film had raked in eight nominations, but could not make it to the Best Picture category.

Rebecca Ferguson secretly married partner Rory

Rebecca Ferguson has revealed that she tied the knot with her boyfriend, Rory in an intimate ceremony last month. The 'Mission: Impossible - Fallout' star and Rory, whose last name is unknown, have been relationship since 2016.

"I think we both wanted to step over all thresholds. Also, I'm not very religious. I believe in love. It was more for us and our family. We rented a cottage with friends and family and Wellington boots and big woolly socks and big rugby jumpers" she told.

The Swedish actor, however, claims married life is 'nothing' different.

"I wore a beautiful skirt, a wedding skirt, that I can shorten off, get some pockets in, and use in Greece for the summer!" she added.

Ferguson said that her six-month-old daughter slept through the ceremony, while the ring bearer was her 11-year-old son, Isaac, from her previous relationship with Ludwig Hallberg.

TIP: EROS is focusing solely on Indian content?

Today we are into India content and that may change too. But the price point is also different. Our price point is lower; we want to get people in and we want to get them hooked because we love our content and we think that people will love the creative content that we have whether it is Smoke or Side Hero, Bajirao Mastani or a Bajrangi Bhaijaan, and they will get hooked. As our business grows and viewers get a hooked we can start thinking about different pricing scenarios.

TIP: So while you are ahead of the rest in the Indian market be it Netflix or Amazon, so one is that you have a very strong subscriber base and then your price point, and then your library and content. So you don't see any competitor near you now?

Well we have the best library of over 11,000 films and theatrically we have many new productions. There is always competition but just like here the competition that you see is Disney, Fox, Warner and MGM, you see competition but of you bring a brand and having good content. Premium content wins. I know it sound cliché, if you put out good content, you will win. We truly believe that, so that's what we lead with, First is the best content, and we have the best infrastructure whether through our theatrical distribution or through EROS NOW our digital platform which we think is the best in the world for Indian content.

TIP: And how about the scenario in the US?

In US you have 4.3 million Indians that's not including the 3rd and 4th generation. You have another almost 1 million in Canada. So there is a big opportunity. Here I want to drive this our business and market penetration. I want EROS NOW to be preeminent in the United States and North America. And in order for that to happen again it leads with premium content. If we give the best content, then people want to watch it. So EROS NOW is priced at $7.99 a month in US. How do we get subscribers - we are focused on our tearing strategy of marketing. One is through theatrical distribution to the theaters. The goal is to use social media correctly as we are a digital company so we want to use Instagram, we want to use Twitter, we want to use Facebook, we want to digitally advertise our EROS NOW product because the millennial average age is 27 and here also people are becoming more and more digitally oriented including my parents, my 88 year old dad is now learning how to text and tweet. So you have to adapt. So the old school of putting up posters is not how you get the eye balls so for example. Whether it is Priyanka Chopra: she has over 50 million Instagram followers, Donald Trump has 75 million social media followers, we know that we need to get eye balls to view our content. We could do partnerships with some of these folks like a Priyanka Chopra for example. And then we get right there 50 million eye balls. So there are opportunities that we see from a visionary perspective that we think there are going to be new things, new techniques and how to get more subscribers into our system,

TIP: You will be able to attract the subscribers as you say because of the content?

Yes.

TIP: So content is the most important thing?

Yes content is the most important thing because if you have good content then people always want to watch it. Be it Indian, American or other, if it is good content people are going to watch it. If it's a good play you are going to watch it like Hamilton on Broadway was one of the top plays and everyone wanted to watch it and they could raise their ticket prices. Springsteen on Broadway was sold out for a year. You could not get a ticket; the second-hand market was charging you had $1500 to $4000 for a ticket. So that shows you just that if the content is great people will want it.

TIP: You said merge Hollywood with Bollywood Merge in what sense?

Slumdog Millionaire was a good test so that did well, but it didn't do well originally at the box office until it won an Academy award. Million Dollar arm which was done by Disney and that was film about 2 cricketers that were trying to find if they could pitch in major league baseball in the US. That didn't do too well. So again you have got to find the right mix between Hollywood and Bollywood western content and Indian content that makes sense because culturally it's a difference. In India only 8-10 % of the box office today is western that's Hollywood. 88 to 90 % is pure Indian regional content. Indians are in globally, with healthy and tasty Indian food, Yoga and Bollywood dance studios, so we want to capture viewers globally.

TIP: What I look at when I look at the movies made in India or here, I find here in Hollywood there are very few movies which have Indian content/ story as theme or background, In India the stories which are being made on some American or Canadian or British background , they deal mostly with Indians abroad like you know people living in UK but of Indian origin , Indians living in US, Indians living in Canada. So they are doing really well. So I see your point there that this merger does exist somewhere at some point. And the movies have been doing well.

Yes 100%. You know Aziz Ansari, the Indian comedian did a show for Netflix called Master of None. Very good show and I commend Netflix for the good job done on it and I commend him he did a good job on it. I saw him the other day doing his show in the Atlantic City and he did a great job. I can see that we can do those what they are doing but perhaps even better. And it's a show about an Indian American who has come here, immigrant parents and he wants to become an actor and it is almost like Seinfeld and I think more of that can pertain because India is very popular in US now and I have said this many times Indians are in, when we look at EROS or EROS NOW Indians are in whether its Yoga, whether its Indian Food, whether its Bollywood dance which they have studios all over the country now, and there are competitions all over the country whether it's even Zumba which is again a take off of Bollywood dance, in all of these things we see Indian culture and Indians also I know we are the most affluent ethnic group here one, Two you are looking at Indians now who have conquered Wall Street, you see Indian CEOs on Wall Street. You There are Indian CEOs at some of the top companies in the world like Google, Microsoft, Pepsi, Mastercard and Adobe and they all exemplify the strength of Indians. In addition, most people are not threatened by Indians, we are smart, but we are good people with a lot of intellectual horsepower

Prem is with Bruce Springsteen

TIP: What kind of values are we talking about, the work culture or something more?

So when we talk about values, one is that it is shown by Lead by example. One, it comes from hard work. Two, it comes from treating everyone with respect. We have close to 500 employees and we treat everyone whether it is the tiffin person in Mumbai to my Executive Assistant to high end professionals, sales & marketing with the same level of respect as that is important. Three, Integrity. I believe everyone needs to have integrity in this company and ethics are important. I will tolerate mistakes, but I won't tolerate anyone who does not have integrity. That's where we draw the line. And then finally Team work, it's important to be a team player and a lot of companies use that as a cliché, but we mean it. But I can't emphasize enough integrity. To me that's the most important. It takes many years to build a company and to build a reputation and it can take 15 seconds to blow it all up.

TIP: So you were born here so how come you connect so well with the Indian movies, Bollywood or regional movies without being there or living in that country?

"So you have to believe in yourself, you have to believe in your employees, you have to have goals and that's what you strive to achieve. We will do it with integrity because that is the most important thing. Finally it is important to spend time with your family because that's what gives you soul, that's the infrastructure that you need to achieve anything outside."

Time for kids. Prem with daughters Trinity (13), Kayla (10), and son Hudson (8)

So that's a great question. I grew up here in US. I did not grow up watching Bollywood films or regional or Indian movies. In fact, my when we first moved to the affluent community of Scarsdale, NY, my Mom and Dad would only speak English in the house. No Malayalam, no Tamil no Hindi, Only English. They wanted me to assimilate and grow up like a true American. You know I was the only Indian American in grammar school in the first few years. I never felt discriminated even though the color of my skin was brown. At times I would look around and say how come I am brown, and they are white, but I never felt discrimination. Two you learn the American Ideals, good and bad. But that was something my parents wanted for me, to grow up as a true American. Now, I joined an Indian company and one of the things growing up I missed was the culture. So there was always Indian culture in the house but at the same time I didn't watch the traditional Bollywood films. I wanted to go see Star Wars. Those are the things I might have missed growing up, but I am glad that I now get to know and understand more of my Indian heritage. I watch all of our top films and Originals. Most of them are excellent. Bajirao Mastani was one of the greatest films that was produced. I loved it. Bajrangi as well. So while I did not grow up watching Indian movies, today I really enjoy them and love all of our Originals that I usually binge watch as well.

TIP: And how about the language barrier?

Again there are subtitles for everything. If you are in South India and you speak Malayalam, you may not necessarily speak Hindi but subtitles and dubbing solve this problem. We are over 135 countries.

TIP: So I am looking at summing up from you that at the end of the day you may be an accomplished and a brilliant student, you may be an accomplished sportsperson, you may be a successful professional in your career but what counts most is the goodness in you. Being good transcends everything else. Is there anything that you would like to tell our readers. You may conclude with a message.

I think when I think about life in general, I think about all these things. For kids, you want to teach them hard work and good values, strong infrastructure, same with work, EROS International and EROS NOW we want to build the company to new heights. I would like to help Eros to grow to over $10 billion market capitalization company. Today, we are a $750 million market capitalization company, listed on the New York Stock Exchange ticker symbol EROS and we have big growth ahead. I am very excited. I mean there is a big opportunity and I believe we will do it. So you have to believe in yourself, you have to believe in your employees, you have to have goals and that's what you strive to achieve. Finally it is important to spend time with your family because that's what gives you soul, that's the infrastructure that you need to achieve anything outside. I want to be known as a great father sometimes that means disciplining my kids. They may not like it now but later on they will appreciate it. That also means teaching them the right values so that they treat others with respect, be good to people and work hard. Finally when this all comes together, whether family or business success, it really all comes down to being a good person. If you are good to others and work hard, God will do the rest. Thank you for your time and God Bless Eros and God Bless America.

Venezuela military backs Maduro, as Russia warns US not to intervene

CARACAS (VENEZUELA) (TIP): The leader of Venezuela's armed forces declared loyalty to President Nicolás Maduro on January 24 and said the opposition's effort to replace him with a transitional government amounted to an attempted coup.

The pronouncement by the defense minister, Vladimir Padrino López, came a day after an opposition lawmaker proclaimed himself the country's rightful leader during nationwide protests and pleaded with the armed forces to abandon Maduro.

The defense minister's declaration was a setback for the opposition leader, Juan Guaidó, whose claim to legitimacy has been backed by a number of countries, including the United States. In a further blow to the opposition, Russia warned the United States on Thursday against meddling in Venezuela, a longtime Kremlin ally that has received billions of dollars in Russian support.

President Vladimir Putin of Russia telephoned Maduro and "emphasized that destructive external interference is a gross violation of the fundamental norms of international law," according to a statement on Putin's official website.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo ignored the admonitions and intensified the Trump administration's call for other countries to accept Guaidó and renounce Maduro.

"His regime is morally bankrupt, it's economically incompetent, and it is profoundly corrupt, and it is undemocratic to the core," Pompeo told a meeting of the 35-member Organization of American States in Washington.

The United States also offered $20 million in emergency aid to Guaidó's side and requested an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council on Saturday on the Venezuela crisis. Diplomats said Pompeo was expected to attend.

Taken together, the events escalated the confusion and conflict over who is the rightful president of Venezuela, the oil-rich and formerly prosperous country upended by political repression and severe economic hardship under Maduro.

An infuriated Maduro cut ties Wednesday with the United States and ordered all diplomats to leave within 72 hours. Pompeo said the United States would not comply.

But a senior U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the embassy in Caracas was evacuating all family members and several diplomats, keeping a core team of officers in place. How long they might stay remained unclear.

Maduro, addressing Supreme Court judges at an event Thursday afternoon, urged the United States to heed his call to withdraw all diplomats by this weekend.

"If there is any sense and rationality, I say to the State Department: You must follow the order," Maduro said.

He added that Venezuela's diplomatic missions in the United States, which include an embassy in Washington and consulates in Florida and Texas, would be shut down by Saturday.

Opposition leaders had hoped key members of the armed forces would break ranks with Maduro after large demonstrations across the country and international pledges of support for Guaidó, including the Trump administration's repeated warnings that a "military option" is possible for restoring democracy in Venezuela.

But so far, senior military commanders appear to be siding with Maduro, even as they express alarm over the possible consequences of rival claims to power.

"We're here to avoid a clash between Venezuelans," Padrino, the defense minister, said in a televised address, flanked by high-ranking officers. "It's not a civil war, a war among brothers, that will resolve Venezuelans' problems."

Padrino called Guaidó's claim to power "laughable" and described him as a pawn of right-wing factions subservient to the United States.

"It makes you want to laugh," he said. "But I must alert the people of the danger this represents."

Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Paraguay, Peru, Ecuador, Guatemala and the Organization of American States have also recognized Guaidó as the country's leader. Others in the region, however, have not, including Mexico, as well as Cuba and Bolivia, longtime allies of Maduro.

Guaidó took an oath Wednesday to lead Venezuela until fair elections can be held. He has argued that as the president of the National Assembly, an opposition-controlled legislative body, he has the constitutional authority to assume power after Maduro took office earlier this month following an election widely viewed as rigged.

The military's pledge of support for Maduro raised the stakes of a standoff that U.S. officials had hoped would be resolved quickly.

Diplomats who back Guaidó hoped that key members of the armed forces would switch sides after an outpouring of support for Guaidó on the streets of Venezuela on Wednesday, and pledges of support by several nations in Latin America.

Military analysts and diplomats were surprised that Padrino had remained largely silent and invisible for hours after Guaidó proclaimed himself the country's interim president. Some were looking for signs of rifts within the armed forces. (NYT)

Queen sends a Brexit message to UK politicians: End your bickering

LONDON (TIP): Queen Elizabeth has sent a delicately coded message to Britain's fractious political class over Brexit, urging lawmakers to seek common ground and grasp the big picture to resolve the crisis. With the clock ticking down to March 29, the date set in law for Britain to leave the European Union, the United Kingdom is in the deepest political crisis in half a century as it grapples with how, or even whether, to exit the European project it joined in 1973.

While Elizabeth, 92, did not mention Brexit explicitly in an annual speech to her local Women's Institute in Norfolk, the monarch said every generation faced "fresh challenges and opportunities." "As we look for new answers in the modern age, I for one prefer the tried and tested recipes, like speaking well of each other and respecting different points of view; coming together to seek out the common ground; and never losing sight of the bigger picture," the queen said. Though steeped in the conventional language the queen has made her hallmark, the remarks in the context of Britain's crisis are a signal to politicians to sort out the turmoil that has pushed the world's fifth largest economy to the brink. "She's been a gold standard monarch for very nearly 67 years now and this is a particularly gilt-edged moment, I think it's very important what she said and how she said it," historian Peter Hennessy said. Buckingham Palace declined to comment though the British media was clear about the significance of her remarks. The Times' headline read: "End Brexit feud, Queen tells warring politicians". As head of state, the queen remains neutral on politics in public and is unable to vote, though ahead of the 2014 referendum on Scottish independence she made a delicately crafted plea for Scots to think carefully about their future.

The future of Brexit remains unpredictable with options ranging from a disorderly exit that would spook investors across the world to a new referendum that could reverse the process. Prime Minister Theresa May is engaged in a last-ditch bid to win support for a tweaked divorce deal after parliament this month crushed the original plan in the biggest defeat in modern British history.

Goldman Sachs will invest less in the United Kingdom if there is a difficult or hard Brexit, Chief Executive Officer David Solomon said. "Our headcount in the UK over the last couple of years has not gone down but it hasn't gone up either. (Reuters)

Australia urges China to treat detained writer fairly

Canberra (TIP): Australia's foreign minister has urged China to treat a Chinese-Australian writer fairly and says there is no evidence that his detention is part of a backlash against Canada's arrest of a top Chinese telecommunications executive.

Spy novelist and online commentator Yang Hengjun was a Chinese diplomat before he became an Australian citizen.

Friends say the 53-year-old had been living in New York as a visiting scholar at Columbia University and had returned to China last week with his wife and 14-year-old stepdaughter.

Foreign Minister Marise Payne said Australian Embassy officials had their first meeting with Chinese officials in Beijing on Yang's detention on Thursday.

Australia had requested urgent consular access to him, an explanation for his detention and of possible charges. (AP)

Scientist who edited babies' genes is likely to face charges in China

HONG KONG (TIP): A Chinese scientist who claimed to have created the world's first genetically edited babies "seriously violated" state regulations, according to the results of an initial government investigation reported on January 19 by Chinese state media.

The investigators' findings indicate that the scientist, He Jiankui, and his collaborators are likely to face criminal charges.

He shocked the world in November when he announced that he had used Crispr, a powerful gene-editing technique, to alter the genes of human embryos. He produced some data but no definitive proof during his presentation at an international conference in Hong Kong.

The investigation found that he and his team had edited the genes of human embryos and then implanted the embryos in female volunteers, as he claimed last year. One volunteer gave birth to twin girls in November, and another volunteer is now pregnant, according to Xinhua, the Chinese state news agency.

He's announcement raised ethical concerns about the long-term effects of such genetic alterations, which if successful would be inherited by the child's progeny, and whether other scientists would be emboldened to try their own gene-editing experiments.

Scientists inside and outside China criticized He's work, which highlighted fears that the country has overlooked ethical issues in the pursuit of scientific achievement. Chinese authorities placed He under investigation, during which time he has been kept under guard at a guesthouse at the Southern University of Science and Technology in the city of Shenzhen.

The university announced Monday that it was rescinding He's contract and canceling all of his teaching and research activities there.

The investigation also found that He had raised funds on his own "in pursuit of personal fame and fortune." The allegations that he forged documents and financed his work independently could shield from punishment his university, local authorities and the hospital where the trial was carried out. # HERE'S WHY OILING YOUR MANE IS IMPORTANT

No matter what your hair type is, you need to use a hair vitaliser to regain your mane's strength and quality.

Why is hair oiling crucial?

Beautician Nishi Nanda says, "Similar to hair oil, a hair vitaliser contains ayurvedic herbs that enhances the growth of hair and also stimulates the scalp. However, to ensure that you get optimum results, it is always advisable to choose a vitaliser that suits your hair type."

Bhringraj

Those who have oily scalp and experience dandruff issues, a hair vitaliser that contains bhringraj is ideal for you. You can also opt for one that has shikakai in it to boost hair growth and reduction of excess sebum from scalp.

Reetha

This vitaliser is ideal for those who have a normal hair type - not too oily nor too dry. Apart from keeping your scalp clean, it also ensures that your hair does not lose out on its sheen.

Amla and lemon

This combination is good for those who have dry hair. Amla keeps the hair and scalp moisturised, while lemon ensures that the scalp does not experience dandruff problems.

Starry pony-tales

Move over Hollywood curls and wispy waves, because the humble ponytail is having its day in the limelight. Here's how you can get a celeb-perfect variation:

Lusting after an Ariana Grande-style voluminous, half-up/half-down ponytail? The trick is to use hair extensions that make for a cascading, volume-high ponytail. In a social media post a few years back, Ariana had revealed that the ponytail is not only her signature style, but it also helps her masquerade damaged hair. Lusting after an Ariana Grande-style voluminous, half-up/half-down ponytail? The trick is to use hair extensions that make for a cascading, volume-high ponytail. In a social media post a few years back, Ariana had revealed that the ponytail is not only her signature style, but it also helps her masquerade damaged hair. Whatever the reason, it's safe to say that her fierce ponytail makes for quite an inspiration. Ariana hit beauty headlines again when her ponytail peeped stylishly from her baseball cap too, during a performance. Now that's what you call commitment!

Slick and sleek

Thought ponytails have a casual edge to them? Go for straightened hair tied into a pony, with a tightly pulled-back mane. Our very own Deepika Padukone has been rocking it, and so did many Hollywood beauties at the recently held Golden Globes. Also it'll give you a quick Croydon facelift — highlighting your jawline and helping your makeup pop.

Minimal styling

If we've learned one thing from celeb pony-dome, it has to be to keep it simple. Skip the hair ties and pins, keeping the look minimal. This will put the focus off of your accessories and bring it straight to your neat ponytail and the way it has been styled. Of course, to keep that cascading pony intact, you'd need a swirl of hair to hold it all together. A little trick here, a few hacks there, and you'll be all set.

COMFORT WITH A BREATH EASY MODE

As girls you are always ready to do anything to make your man happy. After a long day's hard work when he returns back home half of the energy goes wasted because he looks extremely fatigued. This is perhaps one of the best ways to arouse his mood when you see him worn out. Just make sure that you act as a helping hand in wiping out his tiredness either through a hot/cold beverage, a home made cuisine and at the most sacrificing your favorite channel by handing him over the remote as well! In the process ask him if there is anything which he would like you to do for him at the present moment. This will relieve him of his stress, and the relaxation that would take place thereafter will be the perfect buzz for arousing his willingness.

GIVE HIM A BACK-RUB WITH WARM OIL

Well nothing seems more sensual than ever before to offer your man a hot oil massage to get him back in his mood. I doubt if there's any exceptional guy who would refuse this cozy relaxation. Take him to a neat and clean room, turn on a soft romantic music as a background score, open his clothes, gently make him laid down on a soft couch and slather him up with oils. As you run your hands all through his body he will be arousing a passionate urge from within. If possible you too can remove your clothes halfway though, to heighten the ambience. Subsequent to his oiling up for you, there's no means he can turn down your lascivious mood.

Sensuous ways to arouse your man

OPT FOR A TITILLATING OUTFIT

More than women men are no doubt very perceptible. If he somehow sees you in a sexy outfit, or rather a slickest work wear, or the most in a state of wildness and beauty he cannot take his eyes off you, and within no less time he will definitely bump into you. In order to add an extra charm to the mood why don't you opt for a candlelight dinner, or offer him his favorite drink and make him sip the glass with your own hands by wearing the sexy nightwear. When he will see your sensuousness he too will be an active participant to that wild mood as well.

WHISPER INTO HIS EARS YOUR DESIRES

Be cozy with your partner and rest your head on his shoulders. Look into his eyes and kiss him on his forehead. Then gently bring him closer to you and in a hushed tone murmur into his ears what exactly you want him to do for you in a private space. This moment is the perfect timing for arousing his mood, since he has already begun to visualize the wild fantasies dropped down into his ears. As your breath increases so does his sensitive feelings to take you in his arms straight away to the bedchamber and escalate the seduction.

TURN ON A SENSUOUS MELODY

Always remember that ambience plays an important role for heightening the crotchet. In order to execute things as planned by you, make sure that the room is a bit unilluminated, and somewhere in the corner turn on a sexy music to make the situation more sensuous. You can also tune in to the mix tape of love songs which you had previously dedicated to him either on your fist date, or your first night with him. Let the songs act as a nostalgic mode so that he reminisces about the cozy moment spent between you both, and relive the moment by following the step to step flashback moments once again with you at the present moment.

LOW CARB? LOW FAT?

WHAT LATEST DIETING STUDIES TELL US

Bacon and black coffee for breakfast, or oatmeal and bananas? If you're planning to try to lose weight in 2019, you're sure to find a fierce debate online and among friends and family about how best to do it. It seems like everyone has an opinion, and new fads emerge every year.

Two major studies last year provided more fuel for a particularly polarizing topic — the role carbs play in making us fat. The studies gave scientists some clues, but, like other nutrition studies, they can't say which diet — if any — is best for everyone.

That's not going to satisfy people who want black-and-white answers, but nutrition research is extremely difficult and even the most respected studies come with big caveats. People are so different that it's all but impossible to conduct studies that show what really works over long periods of time.

Before embarking on a weight loss plan for the new year, here's a look at some of what was learned last year.

Fewer Carbs, Fewer Pounds?

It's no longer called the Atkins Diet, but the low-carb school of dieting has been enjoying a comeback. The idea is that the refined carbohydrates in foods like white bread are quickly converted into sugar in our bodies, leading to energy swings and hunger.

By cutting carbs, the claim is that weight loss will be easier because your body will instead burn fat for fuel while feeling less hungry. A recent study seems to offer more support for low-carb proponents. But, like many studies, it tried to understand just one sliver of how the body works.

The study, co-led by an author of books promoting low-carb diets, looked at whether varying carb levels might affect how the body uses energy. Among 164 participants, it found those on low-carb diets burned more total calories than those on high-carb diets.

The study did not say people lost more weight on a low-carb diet — and didn't try to measure that. Meals and snacks were tightly controlled and continually adjusted so everyone's weights stayed stable.

David Ludwig, a lead author of the paper and researcher at Boston Children's Hospital, said it suggests limiting carbs could make it easier for people to keep weight off once they've lost it. He said the approach might work best for those with diabetes or pre-diabetes.

Ludwig noted the study wasn't intended to test long-term health effects or real-world scenarios where people make their own food. The findings also need to be replicated to be validated, he said. Caroline Apovian of Boston University's

School of Medicine said the findings are interesting fodder for the scientific community, but that they shouldn't be taken as advice for the average person looking to lose weight.

Do I Avoid Fat To Be Skinny?

For years people were advised to curb fats, which are found in foods including meat, nuts, eggs, butter and oil. Cutting fat was seen as a way to control weight, since a gram of fat has twice as many calories than the same amount of carbs or protein.

Many say the advice had the opposite effect by inadvertently giving us license to gobble up fat-free cookies, cakes and other foods that were instead full of the refined carbs and sugars now blamed for our wider waistlines.

Nutrition experts gradually moved away from blanket recommendations to limit fats for weight loss. Fats are necessary for absorbing important nutrients and can help us feel full. That doesn't mean you have to subsist on steak drizzled in butter to be healthy.

Bruce Y. Lee, a professor of international health at Johns Hopkins, said the lessons learned from the anti-fat fad should be applied to the anti-carb fad: don't oversimplify advice.

New smartphone app may help you quit smoking

Researchers say they have created a smartphone app that offers real-time monitoring of smoking-induced ageing, and may help smokers quit the habit.

Smoking is one of the major life-shortening factors that leads to accelerated ageing and premature death, said scientists from Roswell Park Cancer Institute in the US. Quitting smoking increases lifespan and decreases biological age, as measured by DNA methylation, they said. The researchers created the mobile app, Gero Healthspan that offers real-time monitoring of biological changes in response to lifestyle interventions. People can also use it to explore how lifestyle changes such as diets, activities and supplements affect your predicted healthy life expectancy, researchers said.

The study, published in the journal Aging, offers a way to track rejuvenating effect of smoking cessation in real time through the analysis of wearable data.

The bioage acceleration caused by smoking can be detected through the analysis of physical activity signals collected from wearable devices.

A new AI algorithm trained to find certain patterns in intra-day changes of activity level to estimate the biological age of a person has been developed.

The study demonstrates that the smoking-induced ageing acceleration reverts back to normal after smoking cessation: the process can be tracked by wearable device. "It is fascinating that the profound positive effect of lifestyle changes such as smoking cessation could be observed by analysing physical activity of a person," said Peter Fedichev, founder and Chief Science Officer of Gero.

Fried chicken, fish linked to increased risk of early death

Regularly eating fried chicken or fish is associated with a higher risk of death from any cause, specifically heart-related mortality, according to a study on postmenopausal women in the US.

The study, published in the British Medical Journal, suggests that reducing consumption of fried foods, especially fried chicken and fried fish/shellfish, could have a positive public health impact.

Up to a third of North American adults have fast-food every day, and previous studies have suggested that a greater intake of fried food is associated with a higher risk of type 2 diabetes and heart disease, researchers said.

The US researchers investigated the association of eating fried food with death from any cause, and in particular heart and cancer-related death.

They used questionnaire data to assess the diets of 106,966 women, aged 50 to 79, who enrolled in the Women's Health Initiative (WHI) between 1993-1998 and who were followed up to February 2017.

During this time, 31,588 deaths occurred, including 9,320 heart-related deaths, 8,358 cancer deaths and 13,880 from other causes.

The researchers looked at the women's total and specific consumption of different fried foods, including: "fried chicken"; "fried fish, fish sandwich and fried shellfish (shrimp and oysters)"; and other fried foods, such as french fries, tortilla chips and tacos.

After taking account of potentially influential factors such as lifestyle, overall diet quality, education level and income, the researchers found that regularly eating fried foods was associated with a heightened risk of death from any cause and, specifically, heart-related death.

Those who ate one or more servings a day had an eight per cent higher risk compared with those who did not eat fried food.

One or more servings of fried chicken a day was linked to a 13 per cent higher risk of death from any cause and a 12 per cent higher risk of heart-related death compared with no fried food.

Similarly, one or more servings of fried fish/shellfish a day was linked to a seven per cent higher risk of death from any cause and a 13 per cent higher risk of heart-related death compared with no fried food.

However, the researchers found no evidence that eating fried food was associated with cancer-related death.

This is an observational study which only considers women in the US, so may not be applicable more widely, the researchers said.

FACEBOOK TO PROACTIVELY SHUT DOWN FAKE PAGES, GROUPS

Facebook will proactively shut down fake Groups and Pages, even if they were not found to be in violation of its Community Guidelines, the company has announced.

In a blog post on Wednesday, the social media giant said when a Page or Group is removed for violating policies, "we may now also remove other Pages and Groups even if that specific Page or Group has not met the threshold to be unpublished on its own".

Facebook also listed other steps to handle Page content that goes against its policies.

"People who manage a Page will see a new tab that shows when we remove certain content that goes against our Community Standards and when we reduce the distribution of posts that have been rated false by a third-party fact-checker," said Facebook.

The tab includes two sections: content Facebook recently removed for violating a subset of its Community Standards and content recently rated "False," "Mixture" or "False Headline" by third-party fact-checkers.

"To start, we're including content removed for policies like hate speech, graphic violence, harassment and bullying, and regulated goods, nudity or sexual activity, and support or praise of people and events that are not allowed to be on Facebook," said the post.

Body heat can be used to power 'smart garments'

Scientists say they have developed a fabric that can harvest body heat to power small wearable electronic devices such as activity trackers.

Many wearable biosensors, data transmitters and similar tech advances for personalised health monitoring have been "creatively miniaturised," said Trisha Andrew from the University of Massachusetts Amherst in the US.

However, they require a lot of energy, and power sources can be bulky and heavy, said Andrew.

The research, published in the journal Advanced Materials Technologies, describes that in theory, body heat can produce power by taking advantage of the difference between body temperature and ambient cooler air, a "thermoelectric" effect.

Materials with high electrical conductivity and low thermal conductivity can move electrical charge from a warm region towards a cooler one in this way.

Some studies have shown that small amounts of power can be harvested from a human body over an eight-hour workday, but the special materials needed at present are either very expensive, toxic or inefficient, researchers said.

Twitter rolls out new interface for web-users

Micro-blogging site Twitter is rolling out a new interface for web-users that comes with some shortcuts, an updated trending section and a newly-designed emoji button.

"A new Twitter is coming. Some of you got an opt-in to try it now. Check out the emoji button, quick keyboard shortcuts, upgraded trends, advanced search and more," the company tweeted early on Wednesday.

With this update, Twitter has kept in mind little aesthetic updates to make it easier to see who all are involved in a conversation.

"These changes, alongside the way Twitter's desktop version has condensed from three columns into two, should make it easier to both read and send tweets," The Verge reported.

The micro-blogging site is planning on releasing many new updates to the app, including a battery-saving darker mode for the interface.

OVER 55% PC APPS RUNNING OUT-OF-DATE SOFTWARE GLOBALLY: REPORT

More than half (55 per cent) of the personal computer (PC) applications installed worldwide are obsolete, thus making the users and their personal data vulnerable to security risks, a new research from global cybersecurity company Avast said.

According to Avast's "PC Trends Report 2019", users are making themselves vulnerable to hackers by not implementing security patches and keeping outdated versions of popular applications on their PCs. The applications where updates are most frequently neglected include Adobe Shockwave (96 per cent), VLC Media Player (94 per cent) and Skype (94 per cent).

"Most of us replace our smartphone regularly, but the same cannot be said for our PCs. With the average age of a PC now reaching six years, we need to be doing more to ensure our devices are not putting us at unnecessary risk."

"With the right amount of care, such as cleaning our hardware's insides using cleaners, optimisation and security products, PCs will be safe and reliable for even longer," Ondrej Vlcek,

President, Avast, said in a statement.

The report, which used anonymised and aggregated data from 163 million devices across the globe, also found that Windows 10 operating system (OS) is now installed on 40 per cent of PCs globally, which is fast approaching the 43 per cent share held by Windows 7.

However, almost one in six (15 per cent) of all Windows 7 users and one in 10 (nine per cent) of all Windows 10 users worldwide are running older and no longer supported versions of their product.

Running out-of-date OS puts them at risk from vulnerabilities and other significant security issues, noted the global cybersecurity firm. Source: IANS

Google adds Search, Map support to its 'My Business' app

Google has released an updated version of its "My Business" app to allow users to share the service-areas and information about their business via Maps and Search, increasing their chances to be discovered.

Google's "My Business" is a free tool for businesses and organisations, created to help them manage their online presence across Google.

"With this update, we hope to better connect you with potential customers in your service areas so consumers get the services they need and you find new customers," Tom Pritchard, Product Lead, My Business, Google wrote in a blog post on Tuesday.

Since service areas vary from business to business, to make information accurate, users could also configure their service areas by adding specific postal codes or cities they cover.

"Taking into account the changes every business goes through, these settings can be adjusted as needed - so there's no need to worry about being locked into any specific area," Pritchard said. The company will guide new users through the setup process with prompts for local service area businesses and existing "My Business" users would now be able to edit their business information from the app dashboard.

"You'll notice that the 'service area' and 'storefront address' can now be edited separately and if an address isn't applicable to your business, you can easily clear it," Pritchard added.

The app was first released in June 2014.

PEOPLE KNOW ABOUT YOU EVEN IF YOU AREN'T ON FACEBOOK

It does not matter if you are on Facebook or not - or have just deleted your social media presence. Your friends are constantly leaking your privacy to others, reveals a significant study.

The researchers from the University of Vermont in the US and University of Adelaide in Australia found that if a person leaves a social media platform -- or never joined -- the online posts and words of their friends still provide about 95 per cent of the "potential predictive accuracy", of a person's future activities -- even without any of that person's data.

"Privacy on social media is like second-hand smoke. It's controlled by the people around you," the researchers said in a paper published in the journal Nature Human Behaviour.

To reach this conclusion, the team of scientists gathered more than 30 million public posts on Twitter from 13,905 users.

With this data, they showed that information within the Twitter messages from eight or nine of a person's contacts make it possible to predict that person's later tweets as accurately as if they were looking directly at that person's own Twitter feed.

INDIA'S INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY LIKELY TO REMAIN SUBDUED IN NEAR TERM: REPORT

NEW DELHI (TIP): India's industrial activity is expected to remain subdued in the near term, owing to muted domestic demand, weak global economic outlook and uncertainty among businesses over the outcome of Lok Sabha elections, 2019, says a report.

According to D&B Economy Forecast, concerns about the government curtailing its investment due to significant shortfall in tax collections against the target, are expected to keep the industrial activity subdued in the near term.

Dun & Bradstreet (D&B) expects Index of Industrial Production (IIP) to have moderated by 1.5-2 per cent during December 2018.

As per data released by the Central Statistics Office (CSO), industrial output growth dropped to a 17-month low of 0.5 per cent in November on account of contraction in manufacturing sector, particularly consumer and capital goods.

Factory output as measured in terms of the IIP had grown by 8.5 per cent in November 2017.

D&B Lead Economist Arun Singh said the likelihood of a robust economic growth during 2018-19 was dented by unfavourable developments and unexpected shocks that occurred during the year. "We believe that there are likely to be some populist measures announced in the Budget, given it is the election year, around the rural and MSME sectors and overall job creation," Singh said adding that the initiatives around labour and land laws, if taken, would be an added support.

He said the upcoming union budget will set the tone for the economy.

On rupee, the report said concerns over widening trade deficit, rise in global crude oil prices, and uncertainty over the general election outcome are expected to drag down the domestic currency in the near term, even as a likely pause in the US Fed rate hike is expected to support the local unit.

D&B expects the rupee to depreciate to around 70.6-70.8 per US dollar during January this year.

China's economy slows to the weakest pace since 2009

China notched its slowest expansion since the 2009 financial crisis last quarter amid a debt cleanup and trade woes, while signs of stabilization in December suggest government efforts to cushion the deceleration are beginning to take hold.

Gross domestic product rose 6.4 percent in the fourth quarter from a year earlier compared with 6.5 percent in the previous three-month period. In December, gauges of consumption and factory output accelerated, while investment held up.

The world's second-largest economy is on a long-term slowing trajectory as it shifts from the investment-led model of the past while carrying a heavy debt load. The government's response with targeted stimulus measures is being tested by the standoff with US president Donald Trump over trade at a time when the global expansion is already looking shakier.

"Growth will improve from the second quarter onwards," said Morgan Stanley's Chief China Economist Robin Xing in an interview with Bloomberg Television in Hong Kong. "The greater the downward pressure on growth, the stronger the policy response will be."

The data contributed to a continued rally in Asian stocks. Shares in Tokyo, Hong Kong and Sydney climbed after the S&P 500 Index hit its highest since early December on Friday.

For the full year, the economy expanded 6.6 percent, the slowest pace since 1990 and in line with estimates. Although it has moderated significantly from the years of double-digit growth, China is still one of the fastest growing large economies and its larger size now means it remains the world's growth engine.

A breakdown of the data indicate modest signs that government stimulus may be working, albeit slowly. Investment in infrastructure continued its pickup from a nadir reached in September. Industrial output data signal stronger activity in construction, with glass and cement output both accelerating.

The retail sales breakdown also went some way to counter fears of a slump in consumer confidence, showing that the decline in auto sales far outpaces any weakening in other items. Sales of household electronics, furniture, clothing and food all accelerated.

"More crucial than the GDP figure for me was that retail sales didn't see any further deterioration," said James Laurenceson, deputy director of the Australia-China Relations Institute at the University of Technology in Sydney. "As long as services and retail sales are holding up, generally speaking China can get by. But if those remaining drivers of growth start to tank, then the trouble becomes very significant indeed."

WORLD'S 26 RICHEST OWN SAME AS POOREST HALF OF HUMANITY: REPORT

The world's 26 richest people own the same wealth as the poorest half of humanity, Oxfam said Monday, urging governments to hike taxes on the wealthy to fight soaring inequality.

A new report from the charity, published ahead of the World Economic Forum in Davos, also found that billionaires around the world saw their combined fortunes grow by $2.5 billion each day in 2018.

The world's richest man, Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos, saw his fortune increase to $112 billion last year, Oxfam said, pointing out that just one percent of his wealth was the equivalent to the entire health budget of Ethiopia, a country of 105 million people.

The 3.8 billion people at the bottom of the scale meanwhile saw their wealth decline by 11 percent last year, Oxfam said, stressing that the growing gap between rich and poor was undermining the fight against poverty, damaging economies and fuelling public anger.

"People across the globe are angry and frustrated," warned Oxfam executive director Winnie Byanyima in a statement.

The numbers are stark: Between 1980 and 2016, the poorest half of humanity pocketed just 12 cents on each dollar of global income growth, compared with the 27 cents captured by the top one percent, the report found.

India likely to surpass UK in world's largest economy rankings: Report

India is likely to surpass the United Kingdom in the world's largest economy rankings in 2019, according to a report by global consultancy firm PwC.

As per the report, while the UK and France have regularly switched places owing to similar levels of development and roughly equal populations, India's climb up the rankings is likely to be permanent.

PwC's Global Economy Watch report projects real GDP growth of 1.6 % for the UK, 1.7 per cent for France and 7.6 per cent for India in 2019.

"India and France are likely to surpass the UK in the world's largest economy rankings in 2019, knocking it from fifth to seventh place in the global table," the report said.

According to World Bank data, India became the world's sixth largest economy in 2017 surpassing France and was likely to go past the UK which stood at the fifth position. PwC's Global Economy Watch is a short publication that looks at the trends and issues affecting the global economy and details its latest projections for the world's leading economies.

"India should return to a healthy growth rate of 7.6 % in 2019-20, if there are no major headwinds in the global economy such as enhanced trade tensions or supply side shocks in oil."

"The growth will be supported through further realisation of efficiency gains from the newly adopted GST and policy impetus expected in the first year of a new government," said Ranen Banerjee, Partner and Leader - Public Finance and Economics, PwC India.

WEEKLY HOROSCOPE JANUARY 28 - FEBRUARY 3, 2019

Aries:

Peace and calm now descend on you and yours. It had to come. There was nothing left for Ganesha to give you, and He had a mind to be generous. Work, strife, confrontations are all handled with this new mind - set and nothing can upset you. Success comes to you no matter what you turn to. A truly enviable state of being, and richly deserved. Once again, what more can I add?

Taurus:

"All people matter to you now," as Kipling said - and highly. Family, children, loved ones, spouse / partner, parents, in-laws, extended family, neighbors, colleagues - receive help, love, support in your new, caring avatar. New ventures, projects, proposals, partnerships (fine P's, all of them) take off smoothly and existing ones are revamped or speeded up, in turn, you yourself feel cherished, loved, cared for, as never before.

Gemini:

Power and glory, not only from your inner strengths, but in this material world we live in - from money! And this trend will last through the year and spill over into this period as well. Joint - funds, loans, capital, trusts, family income, even domestic expenses - you attend to all and seek to improve and enhance them. Likewise, leases, legal matters and issues. If you are to reckon the profits, accruals, benefits, they are emotional as well as financial. Greater contentment, great spirituality, too.

Cancer:

Contacts, communications, reaching out by all possible means and media - that's the theme now. Opportunities for travel, too, in this theme, naturally. If you work in the arts, the media, in publicity related fields, you now excel at what you're doing, and gain well-deserved plaudits, glory recognition. Ganesha's generosity knows no bounds, does it?

Leo:

It's back to money matters once again. You really need to swing back and forth, coping with the cornucopia of plenty that Ganesha sends you! And that means hard work, but you're not shy of that. Stocks, shares, mutual and marital funds, profits, capital formation - the possibilities are endless. So also, almost the rewards that come your way thick and fast. Esteem, respect, social standing and status, above all, your own greatly enhanced self-image. But some caution will be necessary, too.

Virgo:

Once again, hard work and matching rewards. So, says Ganesha, you really have no cause to complain. Exciting possibilities, equally exciting success in your ventures. Once again, though, Ganesha advises caution, restraint, care in negotiations. Don't make rash or hasty commitments or investments. Read the fine print, study the hidden clauses. You may be riding the crest of a wave, but you have to ensure you don't come crashing down.

Libra:

Accomplishments, targets, achievements, success by whatever name you choose to call it. And lots of possessions, acquisitions, luxuries, assets that are objects of beauty as well as wise investments. The rewards come in all shapes, sizes, hues and textures. The details I can only leave to your imagination, and your individual horoscope. All I can say is, you've worked hard for them.

Scorpio:

Glory, growth, and of course, Ganesha. Nothing could be more awesome in splendor than these great G's. Your cup of happiness, fulfilment, joy, truly, runneth over, as it says in the Bible. Truly, the Good Book has it all in terms of expression. At least for you, Scorpions, as you stand on the threshold of this period.

Sagittarius:

The vital role that relationships and good communication play will be very obvious to you now. Interactions in the family circle with friends, and also with colleagues and superiors may see a few clashes/stand-offs, though they are cordial and pleasant for the most part. Travel, for work/interviews/inspection of sites or locations, too, adds Ganesha. Also, a desire to enhance your skills/expertise/knowledge, acquire greater learning both as an asset and for the sheer joy and satisfaction of it!

Capricorn:-

Targets and goals are what you will be focused on, in a very big way, as you go into over-drive in the work scenario. Some really hard work is foretold - it may be linked to a new or changed job, a promotion, or even a more profitable line of work. Property and home issues, too, along with loans, funds, enhancement of these two, and your other assets, on the financial scene, all come together to keep you busy indeed. I can foresee your determination and dedication!

Aquarius:-

In your own birth sign, you surge ahead in the 2 D's I've mentioned last period, along with the 3 D's of demands - that you make on yourself, and those that others make on you, so that you are more than ever aware of the need to earn more, to provide more, to invest more. The material plane is the all-important one now, and you gear up to face the challenges head-on, in true your sign bull-like fashion, says Ganesha.

Pisces:-

The kind of flat-out slogging you've embarked on since the new moon phase is difficult to sustain indefinitely, so you decide to relax, have a bit of fun. It's not complacency but a sense of satisfaction that work is going very smoothly - and it's going your way. Love and romance, parties, the social circuit, all these and leisure pursuits/hobbies/recreation, too, acquire a touch of glamour and glitz. To round it all off, Ganesha's luck at wins, windfalls, legacies, clever investments, too, comes your way.

SYMBOLS OF LORD SHIVA

Lord Shiva is one of the prominent Hindu gods and one of the "trimurti"(holy trinity) of the Hindu pantheon. Know about the different symbols of Lord Shiva as symbolized by the various things associated with Him. Each of these signify a different aspect of his Supreme Being. Read to know about them.

Unclad body smeared with ashes

This form of Lord Shiva symbolizes the transcendental aspect of his nature and indicates that his presence is much higher than this physical phenomenon. The ashes on the Lord's body is cemetery ash, which points to the philosophy of the life and death and shows that death is the ultimate reality of the life. Most things in the universe reduce to ashes when burned and this aspect of nature is suggested by the ash-smeared appearance of Lord Shiva, who is held to be the God of destruction in Hindu mythology. The Lord is beyond the cycle of birth and death.

Jata (Matted Hair)

The flow of his matted hair represents Shiva as the Lord of Wind or Vayu, who is the subtle form of breath present in all living beings. It shows that Shiva is Pashupatinath, Lord Of All Living Beings.

Sacred Ganga

The river Ganga (or Ganges) is the most sacred river for pious Hindus. According to a legend, the river Ganga has its source in Shiva and flows from his matted hair. This is symbolically represented by depicting Ganga as a jet of water sprinkling out of the head of the Lord and falling on the ground. Legend has it that the Lord allowed an outlet to the great river to traverse the earth and bring purifying water to human being. Hence, Lord Shiva is often referred to as Gangadhara or "Bearer of the river Ganga". The river Ganga also denotes fertility, one of the creative aspects of the Rudra. It also indicates that Shiva is not only the Lord of destruction but also the bestower of knowledge, purity and peace on the devotees.

The Third Eye

In the great Hindu epic Mahabharata, Lord Shiva is depicted as a three-eyed God. Hence, he is often referred to as Tryambaka Deva, meaning "three-eyed Lord". The sun is said to be his right eye, the moon the left eye while fire is his third eye. While his other two eyes indicate his activity in the physical world, his third eye in the center of his forehead looks beyond the obvious. It stands for spiritual knowledge and power, and is thus called the eye of wisdom or knowledge. Like fire, the powerful gaze of Shiva's third eye can search evil from anywhere and annihilate it completely. This is the reason why evil-doers fear his third eye.

Half-Open Eyes

The half-open eyes of Lord Shiva convey the idea that the cycle of universe is in process. When the Lord opens His eyes a new cycle of creation begins and when He closes them it signifies the destruction of the universe for creation of the next cycle. The half-open eyes signify that creation is going through an eternal cyclic process, with no beginning and no end.

Crescent

Lord Shiva is typically pictured as wearing a crescent-shaped ornament on one side of his head. This is why he is often called 'Chandrasekhara' meaning "Having the moon as his crest". The Crescent is actually the moon in its fifth day phase and symbolizes the time cycle through which creation evolves from the beginning to the end. The moon is a measure of time, and thus the Crescent on Lord Shiva's head signifies his control over time. The Lord is the Eternal Reality and He is beyond time. Thus, the crescent moon is only one of His ornaments, and not an integral part of Him.

The Snake around the neck

Lord Shiva is often shown with a snake curled three times around His neck and looking towards His right side. The three coils of the snake symbolize the past, present and future - time in cycles. The snake looking in the right direction of Lord Shiva signifies that the Lord's perpetual laws of reason and justice preserve natural order in the universe. The snake is believed to be the Vasuki Naga, a deadly cobra. The Lord wearing the deadly snake like an ornament signifies that He is independent of time and death. It also suggests the dormant energy, called Kundalini Shakti, that resides within him.

Vibhuti

The three line of ashes drawn on the forehead of the Lord is known as the Vibhuti. It signifies the Immortality of the Lord and his manifested glory.

Tiger Skin

Hindu mythology states that the tiger is the vehicle of Shakti, the Goddess of power and force. Lord Shiva is often shown seated upon or wearing a tiger skin, which emphasizes the fact that he is the master of Shakti and is beyond and above any kind of force. Tiger is also the emblem of lust. The Lord's sitting on Tiger skin indicates that he has conquered lust. Tiger also represents energy. Lord Shiva is the source of the creative energy that remains in potential form during the dissolution state of the universe. He activates this energy using his own Divine Will to project the universe in endless cycles.

different states of existence, unmanifest and manifest. When a damaru is shaken, it produces Nada, the cosmic sound of AUM, which can be heard during deep meditation. According to Hindu scriptures, Nada is the source of creation. This is one of the attributes of Shiva in his famous dancing representation known as Nataraja.

Trishul (Trident)

The trident, or the spear with three prongs, is one of the accessories of the Lord and symbolizes His three fundamental powers iccha(will), kriya(action) and jnana(knowledge). It also signifies His power to destroy evil and ignorance. As His weapon and instrument of punishment the trident represents Lord Shiva's manner of punishing the evil doers on all the three planes - spiritual, subtle and physical.

Kamandalu

The water pot (Kamandalu) often shown adjacent to the Lord is another of his accessories. It is said to be made from a dry pumpkin and containing amrit (nectar). Indian Yogis and sages are seen to carry the Kamandalu as an item of basic necessity. The carrying of the Kamandalu shows the yogic nature of the Lord. But it has a deeper significance. As a ripe pumpkin has been plucked from a plant, its fruit removed and shell cleaned for containing the nectar, an individual too must give up his attachment to the physical world and clean his inner self of egoistic desires to experience the bliss of the Self, symbolized by the nectar in the Kamandalu.

Kundalas

The Kundalas refer to the two ear rings, Alakshya (meaning "which cannot be shown by any sign") and Niranjan (meaning "which cannot be seen by mortal eyes"), worn by the Lord. The ornaments in the ears of the Lord signify that He is beyond ordinary perception. It is noteworthy that the kundala in the left ear of the Lord is of the type used by women and the one in His right ear is of the type used by men. The dual type of Kundalas represent the Shiva and Shakti (male and female) principle of creation.

Mount Kailash

Lord Shiva is most often shown to be seated with the beautiful Himalayas serving as his backdrop. Mount Kailash in the Himalayas is said to be His traditional abode. In Hindu mythology, Mount Kailasha is said to represent the center of the universe. This denotes that Lord Shiva is 'Kailas' - the bestower of peace and also 'Kailashadhipati' meaning "Lord Of Mount Kailash".

Garajau, former girlfriend of Joseph Villani, was found guilty, following a jury trial in September of the crimes of

Most of the ministers of the Modi government, including Home Minister Rajnath Singh and External Affairs Minister Sushma Swaraj, former prime ministers Manmohan Singh and Deve Gowda, and Congress veteran Ghulam Nabi Azad were among those present on the occasion.

The overall theme for the Republic Day celebrations this year is the 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi and tableaux of many states, themed on the iconic freedom fighter, were lined up for the occasion. (Source: PTI)

Federal Government Shutdown...

Trump's requested $5.7 billion for a border wall, CNN reported.

The measure -- a three-week stop-gap spending bill would reopen shuttered parts of the government through February 15 with President having signed the Bill.

Congressional approval of the measure came quickly after the President conceded earlier Friday to mounting pressure over the ongoing shutdown, agreeing to a temporary funding measure that would allow federal employees to return to work.

"I will sign a bill to open our government for three weeks," the President said in an address on Friday, saying that he was announcing that "we have reached a deal to end the shutdown."

Trump said that "a bipartisan conference committee of House and Senate lawmakers and leaders" will work to "put together a homeland security package for me to shortly sign into law."

"Over the next 21 days, I expect that both Democrats and Republicans will operate in good faith," the President said.

Democrats have insisted throughout the shutdown that the President should sign a measure to reopen the government before they proceed to a debate on border wall funding. After weeks of resistance, Trump agreed to just that on Friday, paving the way for congressional Democrats and Republicans to approve a stop-gap funding bill.

The action on Capitol Hill comes after weeks of negotiations largely going nowhere. And it is not yet clear what kind of a deal can be struck between Democrats and Republicans in the weeks to come over border security.

Senate Democratic leader Chuck Schumer suggested at a news conference on Friday that the President's decision to accept a stop-gap funding measure amounted to a validation of the position taken by Democrats during the shutdown fight.

"The President has agreed to our request to open the government and then debate border security," Schumer said.

Schumer appeared optimistic that a resolution over border security can be reached once the government is reopened.

"We in Congress will roll up our sleeves and try to find some agreement on border security," Schumer said.

Democrats have maintained throughout the shutdown fight that they support border security measures, but not new funding for a border wall, a signature promise of Trump's campaign for the White House.

"We don't agree on some of the specifics of border security. Democrats are firmly against the wall," Schumer said on Friday.

"But we agree on many things such as the need for drug inspection technology, humanitarian aid, strengthening security at our ports of entry. And that bodes well for finding an eventual agreement," he added.

In his Rose Garden remarks, Trump did not appear conciliatory nor did he concede defeat. Instead, he continued to paint the matter as a national security crisis and said another shutdown is possible if lawmakers cannot agree to new border wall funding.

"As everyone knows I have a very powerful alternative but I'm not going to use it at this time," Trump said after declaring he'd struck a deal to reopen government. CNN reported exclusively on Thursday that a national emergency proclamation had been drafted that would allow for potentially billions of federal dollars to be put toward wall construction.

"If we don't get a fair deal from Congress, the government will either shut down on February 15 again, or I will use the powers afforded to me under the laws and the Constitution of the United States to address this emergency," Trump said. "We will have great security."

Nearly his entire Cabinet and many of his senior advisers had assembled along the Rose Garden colonnade to listen to Trump speak. They offered enthusiastic applause during his speech, which Trump opened by saying he was "very proud to announce today that we have reached a deal to end the shutdown and reopen the federal government."

"I will make sure that all employees receive their back pay very quickly or as soon as possible. It'll happen fast," Trump said.

"When I say make America great again -- it could never be done without you," Trump said, calling federal workers "great people."

Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi was an eminent freedom activist and an influential political leader who played a dominant role in India's struggle for independence. Gandhi is known by different names, such as Mahatma (a great soul), Bapuji (endearment for father in Gujarati) and Father of the Nation. Every year, his birthday is celebrated as Gandhi Jayanti, a national holiday in India, and also observed as the International Day of Nonviolence. Mahatma Gandhi, as he is most commonly referred to, was instrumental in liberating India from the clutches of the British. With his unusual yet powerful political tools of Satyagraha and non-violence, he inspired several other political leaders all over the world including the likes of Nelson Mandela, Martin Luther King Jr and Aung San Suu Kyi. Gandhi, apart from helping India triumph in its fight for independence against the English, also led a simple and righteous life, for which he is often revered. Gandhi's early life was pretty much ordinary, and he became a great man during the course of his life. This is one of the main reasons why Gandhi is followed by millions, for he proved that one can become a great soul during the course of one's life, should they possess the will to do so.

Gandhi in South Africa

After returning to India, Gandhi struggled to find work as a lawyer. In 1893, Dada Abdullah, a merchant who owned a shipping business in South Africa asked if he would be interested to serve as his cousin's lawyer in South Africa. Gandhi gladly accepted the offer and left to South Africa, which would serve as a turning point in his political career.

In South Africa, he faced racial discrimination directed towards blacks and Indians. He faced humiliation on many occasions but made up his mind to fight for his rights. This turned him into an activist and he took upon him many cases that would benefit the Indians and other minorities living in South Africa. Indians were not allowed to vote or walk on footpaths as those privileges were limited strictly to the Europeans. Gandhi questioned this unfair treatment and eventually managed to establish an organization named 'Natal Indian Congress' in 1894. After he came across an ancient Indian literature known as 'Tirukkural', which was originally written in Tamil and later translated into many languages, Gandhi was influenced by the idea of Satyagraha (devotion to the truth) and implemented non-violent protests around 1906. After spending 21 years in South Africa, where he fought for civil rights, he had transformed into a new person and he returned to India in 1915.

Gandhi and the Indian National Congress

After his long stay in South Africa and his activism against the racist policy of the British, Gandhi had earned the reputation as a nationalist, theorist and organiser. Gopal Krishna Gokhale, a senior leader of the Indian National Congress, invited Gandhi to join India's struggle for independence against the British Rule. Gokhale thoroughly guided Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi about the prevailing political situation in India and also the social issues of the time. He then joined the Indian National Congress and before taking over the leadership in 1920, headed many agitations which he named Satyagraha.

Non-cooperation Movement

Non-cooperation Movement was one of Gandhi's most important movements against the British. Gandhi urged his fellow countrymen to stop co-operation with the British. He believed that the British succeeded in India only because of the cooperation of the Indians. He had cautioned the British not to pass the Rowlatt Act, but they did not pay any attention to his words and passed the Act. As announced, Gandhiji asked everyone to start civil disobedience against the British. The British began suppressing the civil disobedience movement by force and opened fire on a peaceful crowd in Delhi. The British asked Gandhiji to not enter Delhi which he defied as a result of which he was arrested and this further enraged people and they rioted. He urged people to show unity, non-violence and respect for human life. But the British responded aggressively to this and arrested many protesters.

On 13 April 1919, a British officer, Dyer, ordered his forces to open fire on a peaceful gathering, including women and children, in Amritsar's Jallianwala Bagh. As a result of this, hundreds of innocent Hindu and Sikh civilians were killed. The incident is known as 'Jallianwala Bagh Massacre'. But Gandhi criticized the protesters instead of blaming the English and asked Indians to use love while dealing with the hatred of British. He urged the Indians to refrain from all kinds of non-violence and went on fast-to-death to pressure Indians to stop their rioting.

Quit India Movement

As the World War II progressed, Mahatma Gandhi intensified his protests for the complete independence of India. He drafted a resolution calling for the British to Quit India. The 'Quit India Movement' or the 'Bharat Chhodo Andolan' was the most aggressive movement launched by the Indian national Congress under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhi was arrested on 9th August 1942 and was held for two years in the Aga Khan Palace in Pune, where he lost his secretary, Mahadev Desai and his wife, Kasturba. The Quit India Movement came to an end by the end of 1943, when the British gave hints that complete power would be transferred to the people of India. Gandhi called off the movement which resulted in the release of 100,000 political prisoners.

Freedom and Partition of India

The independence cum partition proposal offered by the British Cabinet Mission in 1946 was accepted by the Congress, despite being advised otherwise by Mahatma Gandhi. Sardar Patel convinced Gandhi that it was the only way to avoid civil war and he reluctantly gave his consent. After India's independence, Gandhi focused on peace and unity of Hindus and Muslims. He launched his last fast-unto-death in Delhi, and asked people to stop communal violence and emphasized that the payment of Rs. 55 crores, as per the Partition Council agreement, be made to Pakistan. Ultimately, all political leaders conceded to his wishes and he broke his fast.

Assassination of Mahatma

The inspiring life of Mahatma Gandhi came to an end on 30th January 1948, when he was shot by a fanatic, Nathuram Godse, at point-blank range. Nathuram was a Hindu radical, who held Gandhi responsible for weakening India by ensuring the partition payment to Pakistan. Godse and his co-conspirator, Narayan Apte, were later tried and convicted. They were executed on 15th November 1949.

Vrindavan is one of the most widely-visited pilgrimage spots for Hindus in the country. It is situated in the state of Uttar Pradesh on the banks of the River Yamuna. The holy town of Vrindavan has a very rich and ancient history associated with the Hindu god, Lord Krishna. It is said to be the place where Lord Krishna spent his childhood and adolescence in the forests and there are many popular myths and folklore that revolve around Vrindavan and the ancient town itself.

Vrindavan is also one of the most prominent sites for the international Krishna devotees' association ISKCON. Vrindavan is situated right next to Mathura, its twin holy city, associated with Lord Krishna's kingdom. Vrindavan is peppered with many a beautiful temple devoted to the religion of Lord Krishna.

Govind Dev temple

The Govind Dev Temple in Vrindavan, built in the 16th century by Raja Man Singh is an excellent example of medieval Indian architecture. The building of this temple is closely associated with the famous Vaishnavite preacher and poet, Rupa Goswami. It is an astonishingly beautiful seven storey temple dedicated to Govind Dev, another name for Lord Krishna. The temple has an imposing facade, looking like a European cathedral because of the pillars and colonnades. It is made of red sandstone and is currently in a state of considerable decay, with the main puja related activities having shifted to a smaller temple behind the main structure.

Krishna Balaram Temple (ISKCON)

The Krishna Balaram Temple was established in 1975 under the aegis of ISKCON, an international Krishna Consciousness religious group. The Krishna Balaram Temple is one of the most beautiful temple complexes in the city of Vrindavan and is seen as the spiritual and religious center of the worldwide Hare Krishna movement. It has three temples within the complex, one belonging to Sri Gaura Nitai, one to Lord Krishna and Balaram and the third to Sri Radha and her milkmaids, Vishaka and Lalita. The temple is alive through the year with its many celebrations commemorating every aspect and step of Lord Krishna's life.

Bankey Bihari Temple

The Bankey Bihari Temple of Vrindavan is one of the most auspicious temples in the town, established in the Mughal times by Swami Haridas, the guru of Tansen, the famed court singer of the Mughal emperor Akbar. The temple earns its name from the bent posture of the Krishna idol within the main chamber, an idol with a history. This idol is supposed to have been made according to the image of Lord Krishna that Swami Haridas saw in a dream. The temple is one of the most thronged sites in town and during the Jhulan Utsav, the temple administration brings out many gold and silver swings for the jhulan rituals with a lot of pomp.

Madan Mohan Temple

The Madan Mohan Temple is one of the oldest temples in the town of Vrindavan and it sees many pilgrims visiting all through the year. It is a site that is closely linked to the life of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, one of the most important personalities within the Vaishnavite thought. Situated near the Kali Ghat, the Madan Mohan Temple is said to have been built by one Kapur Ram Das from Multan on the advice of Sanatan Goswami, a saint and follower of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. The original idol of Madan Mohan had been shifted to Karoli, Rajasthan, under the rule of the Mughal king, Aurangzeb and now a replica of the original image is worshipped at the temple.

The Shahji Temple, built in the mid-nineteenth century by the two brothers from Oudh, Shah Kundan Lal and Shah Phundan Lal, is another important and prominent temple in the town of Vrindavan. The temple is dedicated to the deity Sri Thakur Radha Raman Ji and receives a steady flow of pilgrims all across the year. One of the main attractions of this temple is one of the richly carved verandahs, which has the portraits of the two founders and their families beautifully carved into the floor - an unusual characteristic of a Hindu temple. The temple also has many rich carvings over the walls and ceilings inside.

Rangaji Temple

Built in 1851, the Rangaji Temple is one of the more unusual temples of Vrindavan because of its South Indian style architecture with an impressive gopuram. The deity in the temple is called Sri Ranganatha and is represented as sleeping on the Shesh Nag. The imposing Dhwajastambha within the temple premises is very famous. The temple sees a great influx of tourists during the Brahmotsav in spring, where devotees pull the ropes of the chariot of the god. The annual Jalvihar festival is also another main attraction of the Rangaji Temple, when devotees from all over the country participate in the ritual bathing of the idol. The important towns in Brij Bhoomi, all closely associated with Krishna's life are worth a visit. Most fall on or near the Yamuna River.

India beat NZ in first ODI

NAPIER (TIP): India's bowlers laid the foundation before Shikhar Dhawan anchored a straightforward chase to secure comprehensive eight-wicket victory over New Zealand in the first ODI here today. Opener Dhawan made 75 not out and his 91-run stand with skipper Virat Kohli helped India overwhelm the revised 156-run target with 14.1 overs to spare -- the Duckworth-Lewis method employed after the setting sun stopped the play for a while.

On a high after having just won Test and ODI series in Australia, India looked determined to extend their domination across the Tasman Sea as they dismissed their hosts for 157 in 38 overs.

Shami strikes

Paceman Mohammed Shami and wrist-spinners Kuldeep Yadav and Yuzvendra Chahal shared nine wickets among them as New Zealand failed to post a competitive total with only Kane Williamson (64) offering some resistance with the bat. "150-odd on that kind of wicket was quite an easy total to chase down and it all boils down to the effort of the bowlers," Kohli said.

"The pitch got slower in the second half of the innings but in the first half the spinners cramped the batsmen really well, and got those crucial breakthroughs in the middle overs for us."

Chasing 158 to win, India got off to a steady start before Doug Bracewell dismissed Rohit Sharma (11) to end the 41-run opening stand. Kohli joined Dhawan in the middle before the play came to a halt in extraordinary circumstances as the rays from the setting sun were beaming right into the eyes of the batsmen.

India were set a revised target of 156 from 49 overs when play resumed and the tourists made steady progress with Dhawan and Kohli cruising in the middle. Kohli, then on 37, was adjudged lbw to Tim Southee but the India captain reviewed it and got the decision overturned after snickometer suggested a faint edge.

Lockie Ferguson eventually dismissed him for 45, a day after the India captain swept the annual International Cricket Council (ICC) awards.

Quick blows

Earlier, Williamson was left to rue his decision to bat first in the first ODI of the five-match series at Napier's McLean Park. Shami (3/19) made early inroads, dismissing Martin Guptill and Colin Munro in successive overs, bolstering his claim for a place in India's World Cup squad later this year.

Williamson and Ross Taylor (24) embarked on rebuilding the innings but Yadav (4/39) and Chahal (2-43) had other ideas. Williamson hit seven boundaries in his fluent 64 but wickets kept tumbling at the other end as the spinners struck at regular intervals.

At 107/5 at the mid-innings mark, the hosts' hopes of lasting their full quota of 50 overs rested on Williamson batting through the innings but the Kiwi skipper perished at long-on, playing a premeditated shot against Yadav.

Shami fastest Indian to reach 100 ODI wickets

Mohammed Shami has just carried on the good form in New Zealand and become the fastest Indian bowler to complete 100 wickets in one-day internationals.

Shami on Wednesday removed New Zealand opener Martin Guptill in the very first over he bowled in the match to achieve the feat.

The Bengal pacer beat the Indian record which was previously held by left-arm swing bowler Irfan Pathan. Shami got to the landmark in his 56th ODI while Pathan had done it in 59 matches.

Zaheer Khan (65 ODIs), Ajit Agarkar (67) and Javagal Srinath (68 ODIs) complete the top five fastest bowlers from India to complete 100 wickets.

Overall, Shami is tied with Kiwi speedster Trent Boult as the sixth fastest to the landmark in terms of matches played. Afghanistan leg-spinner Rashid Khan leads the list, having set the record in 44 ODIs followed by Mitchell Starc (52 ODIs), Saqlain Mushtaq (53 ODIs), Shane Bond (54 ODIs) and Brett Lee (55 ODIs).

Shami has been in terrific form for India ever since he made a comeback in the one-day side in Australia earlier this month. He got just 5 wickets in the series in the three ODIs but was impressive with the line and lengths he bowled throughout the series.

Shami, after picking up the wicket of Gutpill in the ongoing ODI in Napier, removed the second Kiwi opener Colin Munro, with the third ball of his second over for 8 to give India the perfect start after Kane

SUSPENSION SUSPENDED, HARDIK PANDYA IN SQUAD FOR NEW ZEALAND SERIES

Pandya and Rahul have been allowed to play pending an inquiry by a BCCI ombudsman; Rahul to play against England Lions in last 3 One-dayers

NEW DELHI (TIP): The suspension of Hardik Pandya and KL Rahul was revoked on Thursday by the Committee of Administrators (CoA), two weeks after they were sent home from the tour of Australia following a furore over their sexist comments on a TV show. The senior selection committee has decided to include Pandya in the squad for the series against New Zealand. Rahul will join the India A squad for the last three One-day games against England Lions in Thiruvananthapuram.

However, the matter is far from closed as the duo has been allowed to play pending an inquiry by a BCCI ombudsman, who will be appointed by the Supreme Court. The apex court has listed the matter tentatively for February 5. "The decision has been taken with the concurrence of the learned amicus curiae, PS Narasimha. The suspension order is immediately lifted pending the appointment and adjudication of the allegations by the BCCI ombudsman," read a statement from CoA.

Pandya's and Rahul's crass comments on Koffee with Karan, a chat show, came in for severe criticism and led to a storm on the social media. While CoA member Diana Edulji wanted the BCCI office-bearers to be involved in deciding the fate of the two cricketers, CoA chief Vinod Rai had dismissed the suggestion as it would have been in violation of the board constitution. CoA said the decision to suspend the two was taken under "rule 46 of the approved BCCI Constitution", which covers players' conduct that can bring the board into disrepute.

Kuldeep to Chahal: Miss you when you aren't at the other end

NAPIER (TIP): Like pacers, spinners too hunt in pairs. Maybe that's why Kuldeep Yadav feels the "pangs of separation" when spin twin Yuzvendra Chahal isn't operating from the other end. The wrist-spinners have so far played 36 ODIs each and will be key to India's chances in the upcoming World Cup. Of late, India have resisted the temptation to field both of them together, with Ravindra Jadeja pairing up with either of them in Australia.

In the first ODI against New Zealand, they were reunited, and responded with six wickets between them. "When you don't play, I miss a lot of aspects," Kuldeep told Chahal during an interview for the fun segment of bcci.tv.

"We understand each other's bowling and also the track. It's not always that we are bowling in tandem. There are times when you bowl earlier and I come in later, but we talk a lot about how the pitch is behaving and how the batsman is playing," said Yadav, who picked up four wickets in India's comprehensive win in the first ODI."

Women team too hammers Kiwis

NAPIER (TIP): The in-form Smriti Mandhana and teen sensation Jemimah Rodrigues hammered New Zealand's clueless bowling attack to steer India to an emphatic nine-wicket triumph in the opening ODI of a three-match series here today. The 22-year-old Smriti (105) and the 18-year-old Jemimah (81 not out) put together a batting masterclass after the bowlers did the job for India by bundling out New Zealand for a below-par 192.

Competing in their first series after the furore that followed the team's T20 World Cup exit in the semifinals last year, the Indians produced a thoroughly clinical performance to eke out a comfortable victory.

While Smriti, fresh from winning the ICC women's Cricketer of the Year award, slammed her fourth ODI hundred, Rodrigues notched up her maiden international half-century. "I think it's great to start the series and wonderful to see openers get an over 100-run partnership. I think a lot of girls do look up to Mandhana. She had a great 2018 and she is continuing and it gives a lot of confidence to the dressing room," said India captain Mithali Raj. "But easy catches should have been taken. We are definitely not overconfident," she added, referring to the shortcomings she noticed.

Smriti and Jemimah stitched together the highest ever opening-wicket stand against New Zealand — a 190-run partnership that stood for 32.2 overs. Smriti's 104-ball knock included nine fours and three sixes, while Jemimah struck nine fours.

Earlier, put in to bat, New Zealand wasted a good start and crumbled against the spin of Poonam Yadav and Ekta Bisht. Poonam and Ekta snared three wickets each to put the visiting side on top. Ekta ripped through the White Ferns' middle-order, claiming the scalps of skipper Amy Satterthwaite (31), Lauren Down (0) and Amelia Kerr (28).
